GRAND DUKES PLOT TO KILL CZAR

S. S. PERSIAN AGROUND BOSTONIANS IN PERIL

MERCHANTS LINER REPORTED LEAKING BADLY ON DELAWARE RIVER SHOAL.

Dispatches to the BOSTON AMERICAN from Philadelphia say that the Boston steamship Persian of the Merchants & Miners line is ashore in the Delaware, leaking badly. Tugs have been dispatched to the assistance of the stranded steamer.

Most of the twenty passengers aboard are Boston people.

The Persian left here last Thursday afternoon and was due in Philadelphia today.

No particulars have come to the local agents of the vessel's mishap.

The Persian was formerly on the Boston & Philadelphia line before that service was acquired by the Merchants & Miners Transportation Company. Before going on the Philadelphia line she was the Tallahassee of the Savannah line.

Captain C. F. King, well known in the Atlantic coast service is in command, and has the reputation of being one of the most efficient commanders on the coast. His home is in Everett, where Mrs. Smith is at the present time.

When the Persian left for Philadelphia she had a large quantity of freight, but her passenger list was small. She has accommodations for about one hundred passengers and carries a large crew.

She is of about three thousand tons displacement and one of the largest boats of the old line.

Manager A. M. Graham of the company told an AMERICAN reporter that he had no knowledge of the accident and refused to give out a list of the passengers.

Agent F. T. Wing of the Boston and Philadelphia line said that he had received no word from Philadelphia about any accident to the Persian.

BOUGHT 'ROUND TRIP' TICKETS; NOW REJECTED

Delegates who are attending the thirtieth annual convention of the Central Passenger Association, now holding in Boston, are indignant because of the action of roads controlled by the association in not backing up the certificates issued by their local agents. In order to get a reduced fare to their home cities it is necessary to present 100 certificates to the agent here in Boston. The delegates lack just eleven of the required number.

Delegates in Ohio, Indiana and Michigan bought their tickets in good faith and received certificates from the local agents. They supposed that this would entitle them to the reduced fare on the return trip. But instead they will have to pay full fare returning.

The convention was called to order today by Supreme Regent Howard C. Wiggins. A resolution which developed the question was introduced by Massachusetts, that suspended members be placed in good standing without the payment of back dues, providing they were physically eligible for membership. It is expected that if this resolution is adopted it will be the cause of bringing back many of those who dropped from the order two years ago when the change was made in the business policy of the order.

After posing for a photograph early today the ladies of the party made a tour of Copley square, visiting the Art Museum, Public Library, Trinity Church and the Westminster Hotel. They were accompanied by Mrs. H. A. Berrion of Newton ville, Mrs. A. T. Turner of Brookline, Mrs. C. F. Bruce of Roxbury and Mrs. George W. Adams of Dorchester.

This afternoon the delegates are the guests of the city. The program includes a trip down the harbor on the King Philip.

To-morrow the delegates will make an automobile tour of the city.

Boys Imperilled by Bullet from Revolver; POLICE HUNT 'BREAKER'

Start Rigid Investigation of Shooting in South Boston To-day.

On orders from Captain Wescott, patrolmen of the Broadway police station are searching for a teamster, declared by witnesses to have been driving an E. S. Brine Transportation dray, who fired one shot at some boys at the corner of C and First streets, South Boston, to-day.

Because the shooting was not witnessed by the police the driver managed to whip up his horses and get away. No one was hit by the shot.

Several boys followed the wagon through C street and as it turned into First street something was thrown at the driver. Suddenly whipping out the revolver, the man turned in his seat and pointed the weapon at the boys. At the sound of the shot they scattered in every direction.

Would Recognize Driver.

The shooting was witnessed by Jennie Hafner whose mother keeps a store on the corner. She told a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter that she had seen the driver several times and would recognize him again.

The shooting was reported to police headquarters by telephone and Captain Wescott was at once informed. He sent out several men to investigate. "The man will be found and a warrant asked for immediately," Captain Wescott declared.

A short time ago one of the E. S. Brine teamsters was fined in the South Boston court for carrying a fully loaded revolver.

A strike-breaker employed by the Brine company was taken up to see Governor Guild at the State House yesterday by an official of the company. An exhibit of stones, which it was declared had been thrown at the driver, was brought along. The man did not see the Governor.

To Call on Governor.

It was declared that the Governor would receive a visit every time a driver was attacked and no arrests followed.

President Higgs, of the Employers' Association, who makes the statements for the teamsters whose employes are on strike, in a statement sent out last night, said that the men could go back to work if two articles in the agreement which the union wanted signed are waived.

Business Agent Tobin said the two articles, one of which related to the preference of union men in hiring teamsters and the other that a strike ordered by the International body should not be considered a breach of contract, would be waived.

What the Employers' Association desires, however, is to have every teamster apply individually for his old position and get through the union.

The strike situation will be gone over carefully and the future decided upon at a meeting of the Boston Central Labor Union.

Force "Breakers" to Sign.

That strike-breakers, brought to Boston from New York and other cities, are forced by the Master Teamsters' employing agents to sign printed agreements governing their hiring out as "breakers" and their willingness to "remain within the plant," or, in other words, the "breakers" barricade, at all times when ordered to do so, was brought out in evidence furnished before Master James D. Coll at the hearing on the petition of the Master Teamsters in the strike case. The agreements read as follows:

APPLICATION FOR EMPLOYMENT.

I, ... having applied to the Employers' Association of Boston (transportation department) for a position as ..... have been informed that there is a strike on of the drivers, teamsters and helpers who were employed by said association.

I have been informed that there are guards or special policemen employed in and around the buildings and grounds of the company to be used for the protection of teamsters and drivers, and also to protect the buildings and grounds, the property of the company, should the same be found necessary for my personal safety and interest, in the superintendent of the company.

I have been informed that I will be required to work from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m.

I have been informed that the following is the schedule of wages:

Drivers, one horse, light rig..... $11.76
Drivers, one horse, heavy rig..... 12.00
Drivers, two horses, rig..... 14.00
Drivers, three horses, rig..... 15.00
Helpers, one horse, rig..... 10.50
Helpers, two horses, rig..... 12.00

I agree to accept the free board supplied as an extra compensation or bonus for my services during the strike period.

I further agree to give the Employers Association (transportation department) the right to deduct the cost of my transportation, should I fail to remain in their employ thirty days, which amount is to be the company's wages due to me at the time of quitting.

.....

"Breakers" Signed Blindly.

Strike-breakers testified to hiring out in New York and signing a "paper." Henry Finkelstine, a driver for the Boston Forwarding Company, said he did not read the paper before putting his name to it. All "breakers" signed the same "papers," he said.

Of fifteen strike-breakers who were sent to Boston from New York yesterday only six arrived here, it is said to-day.

Imported Drivers, Now "Prisoners," Say They Blindly Signed Agreement.

BOY BRANDER THOUGHT ACID WAS HARMLESS

Tried It On Himself First, Declares Member of Melrose School Club.

Walter Murray, son of City Collector James W. Murray of Melrose, in an interview with a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter today, frankly admitted that he had used the caustic on the faces of three boys during an initiation into the Delta Phi fraternity of the Melrose High School, as a result of which the three were badly burned about the face.

"I certainly had no idea that the stuff would do any harm," young Murray said. "I got it from a Boston druggist who assured me that it would not harm the skin. To make doubly sure I tried it on myself and while it left a black mark it did not burn at all and I thought then it was all right.

"I am very sorry for the trouble that has been caused. What happened was only intended to be fun and had I any idea that there would have been serious consequences, I should not have had a hand in it."

Young Murray said that he was ready to stand by any action that might be taken by the school authorities or anyone else and had retained William E. Waterhouse as counsel.

Contrary to the general opinion he said that there were not more than a dozen members of the fraternity present when the application of the caustic was applied. Two of the boys whose faces were burned have returned to school and young Gilson, who was the worst affected said that he would be back in the classroom on Monday.

ITALIANS HOLD ANNUAL FEAST OF ST. MARY

Nine Hundred Will March in Parade Followed by Concert and Fireworks.

To-day is the Feast of Saint Mary of Annane, and the Italian residents of Boston assemble their friends from surrounding towns to take part in festivities dear to the Italian heart, and devotions in honor of the Blessed Virgin.

In Annane, in Southern Italy, originated the feast to commemorate the goodness of the Virgin Mary as the immigration from this town has greatly depleted the population, Italians in America now celebrate on May 18 and 19 each year.

The Boston programme this year calls for a parade by two of the largest of the Italian organizations, the Society of San Maria di Annane and the San Maria Della Grazie, which turn out 900 men, headed by the Italian Marine Band, and march through the principal streets of the North End. A ban concert and fire works in North End square, the festivities, from 9 p. m. till midnight.

To-morrow there will be church services at St. Leonard's Church. A band concert in the stand at North square will last from 2 until 7 p. m.

Guiseppe L. Pagin, president of the Saint Mary Society, assisted by Dr. Marco Mostrangelo and a committee of well known Italian Americans, have charge of the arrangements.

Terror in Imperial Palace Where Family Is in Momentary Expectation of Assassination, Both From Within and Without.

Special Cable to Boston American.
Copyright, 1907, by Hearst News Service.

ST PETERSBURG, May 18.—The discovery of a plot among the Grand Dukes and reactionists to kill the Czar has astounded the empire.

Following the arrest within a few days, inside the very palace itself, of the hired assassins of the reactionists, the discovery of a conspiracy among the royal entourage has thrown the Czar and all members of his family into a condition of abject terror.

The Czar is convinced that his life is threatened from all sides. The reactionists, who want to dissolve the Duma and end the aspiration for popular government, are plotting within the palace walls. The terrorists are laying plans to reach the Emperor by men and even women, who are ready to throw away their lives recklessly so they can kill their ruler.

STOLYPIN ALSO DOOMED.

The judge investigating the recent terrorist palace plot against the Czar found convincing evidence that Premier Stolypin and the Grand Duke Nicholas were also to be murdered. The plot provided several expedients to achieve the purpose.

A milkwoman who cries meets the Czar on the Tsarskone road was engaged to throw a bomb at him.

There was also an organization to murder the Czar on the railway when he moved from Tsarkoe-Selo to Peterhof next week. The frustration of the plot merely cuts off one of the Hydra's heads. The others remain very numerous and dangerous.

The quantity of bombs recently made in and around St. Petersburg is enormous. Hundreds have been discovered by the police, but probably thousands are still in possession of the revolutionists, who, it is believed, are preparing a serious coup like that just balked at Tsarkoe-Selo.

BRISED SOLDIER TO ASSIST.

Mystery surrounds the present doings at Tsarskoe-Selo. The refusal of the government to issue a statement of the facts in regard to the Terrorist plot against the life of the Emperor, which came to light at Tsarskoe-Selo two days ago, coupled with the ambiguous attitude of certain officials, has served to increase the confusion of the public. The explanation seems to be that the government has to deal in addition with a reactionary plot against the Emperor which contemplated the proclamation of a regency or dictatorship.

It is also believed that the soldiers of the guard regiment on duty at Tsarkoe Selo, who confessed to the acceptance of a large bribe to assist in the plot to assassinate the Emperor, received the money from one of the Dalmatists now in custody.

EFFECT ON THE DUMA.

The Constitutional Democrats have fully decided to utilize the plot to remove the unfavorable impression made on the Emperor and ministry by the failure of the lower house to condemn terrorism. As soon as the expected official note on the subject of the conspiracy appears, President Gulovin will announce the abhorrence of the members of the house on legal subjects of His Majesty, of this attempt at regicide, which announcements will be received by the Constitutional Democrats, the Poles, and other centre parties with applause. The Social Democrats plan to withdraw from the hall during the demonstration.

PEACE RESTORED IN MANDELL'S STABLE; WORK IS RESUMED

C. M. Mandell, the master teamster whose drivers went out last Monday because of trouble in the stable, says that he has not signed an agreement with the union, although he has come to an understanding with their officials. With four exceptions, Mr. Mandell's employes returned to work yesterday. Three of them he expects back by Monday. One did not come back, and cannot come back under any circumstances, Mr. Mandell says. He is the man who caused the trouble, and because of which the other men went out.

Mayor Fitzgerald's request for a loan of $500,000 for the repairing and reconstruction of streets is attacked in a communication sent to-day by the Good Government Association to each member of the Board of Aldermen.

The association notified the Aldermen that it has just taken a postal card vote which shows that 653 citizens or taxpayers of Boston have declared in favor of raising the money by taxation as against 37 who stated their preference to a loan. The postal cards were sent to members of the Chamber of Commerce, Merchants' Association, Associated Board of Trade, Bar Association and Real Estate Exchange.

RAFFERTY HELD FOR SHOOTING

Strike-Breakers' Chef Waives Hearing While Girl Hovers Near Death.

BAIL PLACED AT $5,000

Charged with shooting Marguerite Kingston, the young woman heard dying at the Emergency Hospital, with a thirty-eight caliber bullet in her lung, Frank Rafferty, chef for the strike-breaking teamsters, was arraigned in the first session of the Municipal Criminal Court before Judge Wentworth, and was held under $5,000 bail for the June Grand Jury.

It developed today that the girl told Captain Dugan that the reason Rafferty shot her was because she refused to remain in his company, and that before his crime, she declared, he locked the door of the room at the Continental Hotel and fired at her.

Set with Other Prisoners.

Rafferty was taken into court in company with twenty prisoners mostly charged with intoxication. He occupied a seat in the dock for over an hour, while the court disposed of the minor cases. He sat among the other prisoners with his head bowed down and his hands clasped, his fingers twitching nervously.

When called by Clerk Ingalls at 10.45 Rafferty arose and unsteadily approached the dock railing. For a moment he stared about the room and then nervously ran his fingers through his bushy hair and eyed the clerk.

After the clerk had read the complaint charging him with shooting Marguerite Kingston with intent to kill, he asked the prisoner if he was guilty or not guilty.

Pleads "Not Guilty."

Rafferty, in uncertain tones, answered, "No, I am not guilty."

"Have you counsel?" asked Clerk Ingalls. Rafferty replied, "No."

When told by Clerk Ingalls that he could have a hearing or could waive the examination and be held for the Grand Jury, the prisoner, clearing his throat, asked:

"What do you mean by waiving examination? Can I be discharged in this court if I had a hearing?" returned the prisoner.

Told that he could not be discharged in this court, Rafferty then replied: "Well, then, I will waive the examination, but I am not guilty."

Judge Wentworth then called Police Officer James J. Gillen of Station 4 to the stand. Officer Gillen rehearsed briefly the story of the shooting and related that the police had enough evidence to convict the prisoner. He declared that the doctors give but little hope for the recovery of the Kingston girl.

Held Without Hearing.

This was all the evidence introduced, and at the close of the officer's story Judge Wentworth ordered Rafferty held for the Grand Jury.

Rafferty wore a black suit, little the worse for wear, and a French flannel, cream colored negligee shirt, with a purple and white four-in-hand.

Attorney Feeley, who has appeared in behalf of the strike-breakers, was not in court. Rafferty was taken to the City Prison.

Prostrated to-day at the news that her daughter Marguerite is dying at the Emergency Hospital, Mrs. Katherine Kingston, secluded at her home, No. 4 Arnold street, that she did not believe her daughter shot herself, as she cannot understand the shooting at all, she says.

Constantly calling for her daughter and unable to be quieted, the grief-stricken mother to-day said she was positive that Marguerite was not responsible for the shooting.

"She Was a Good Girl."

"She was such a good girl always, so good to me and to her sisters," moaned Mrs. Kingston. "I never knew of this man Rafferty. It seems strange that Marguerite could have known him, for she had few if any men friends, and was such a steady, hard-working girl. Oh, I cannot understand it all.

"Marguerite was a waitress, and always earned good wages. She lived most of the time at home, but when employed out of town we did not see her quite so often. She was once head waitress of a down-town restaurant, and that was a good position.

"My daughter never stayed out late at night, and never had any callers except her girl chums. She was loved by all of her friends. She had a lovely disposition, was always kind to everyone and bore no soul in the world any malice.

Earned Her Own Living.

Far from being of a roving disposition, her only object in trying to earn her own living was to help support myself and her sisters. I have seven daughters, Marguerite, being twenty-seven. We cannot understand how it was that Marguerite came to meet this man who is under arrest. We are sure that she had no friendships that we did not know about. Oh, I hope my daughter will live. They must do all they can for her at the hospital—for my Marguerite, my Marguerite." And the mother broke into a fit of passionate weeping.

Early to-day, it was stated at the hospital that the Kingston girl could not live. Physicians say they fear to probe for the bullet for several days owing to the woman's condition. She was unconscious all night and very weak.

Says Girl Tried Suicide.

While waiting for the ambulance to remove the girl to the hospital after the shooting, Policeman Gillen, finding the girl partly conscious and fearing that she might later be unable to answer questions, asked her how she came by her wound.

"Frank shot me!" the girl is said to have replied, faintly.

Rafferty, after being taken to the Lagrange street station and questioned by Captain Cain, was sent, under charge of Special Officer Linton and Patrolman Gillen to the hospital, in order that a formal identification should be made by the woman of Rafferty, and that she might make a direct accusation against him.

"Yes, He Is the Man!"

As soon as Rafferty was led toward the cot on which the woman was lying, she opened her eyes and nodded weakly in recognition toward him.

"Is this the man who shot you?" asked Officer Linton.

"Yes, he is the man."

"You lie, I didn't shoot you; you shot yourself," Rafferty growled at the girl, rising at the chains that bound him to the officers.

"No," said the woman, in a voice that could scarcely be heard. "You shot me, Frank, and you know you did," and then the physician told the officers that the woman would be allowed to talk no more.

The Kingston family lives at No. 4 Arnold street, Roxbury. One of the daughters is married—Mrs. T. J. Doolin of No. 7 Grove street, Dorchester. It was Mrs. Doolin that the wounded girl wanted notified after the shooting.

CHILD'S BODY CLOGGED BIG WATER WHEEL

Special to the Boston American.

WRENTHAM, May 18.—Residents of this town are shocked to-day over the story of the finding of Preston Beaumont, the three-year-old son of Louis Beaumont, late yesterday in the water wheel of his father's shoddy mill. His little body clogged the wheel so that the mill power was stopped, and an investigation started to determine why the wheel refused to work resulted in the horrible find.

Just previous to the discovery the child was seen playing on a bridge which spans the stream that supplies water to the wheel. It is supposed that he fell into the stream and was sucked into the giant wheel. His father was overcome when he saw his boy.

Medical Examiner J. A. Gallison, of Franklin, was notified, and pulled the pieces of the child's body out of the wheel. Ten men are employed in the shoddy mill. Nobody saw the child fall into the stream, as he was playing alone.

HUMMEL ON EVE OF PRISON FETES CHUMS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, May 18.—Abe Hummel, who has been expected to go to Blackwell's Island to-day to serve a term in prison, gave a farewell dinner last night to a number of his friends, associates and supporters, at his home, No. 52 East Seventy-third street, where he has lived for many years with his aged mother.

Only the invited guests had any prior knowledge of the banquet and from the outside of the great brownstone house he would never have been suspected that a jolly party was gathered in the parors, temporarily converted into a banquet hall, for the heavy curtains were drawn. Not a ray of light escaped and the house appeared to be deserted.

The guests for the banquet began to arrive at Hummel home shortly after 6 o'clock. They were all men. They came in automobiles, carriages and cabs. As soon as the occupants left the vehicles they were driven to Fifth avenue and around the corner, where they stood in line. No one could judge from their position where the entertainment was in progress.

At the door of Hummel's house was stationed his negro butler who swung the door open for each new guest, permitting a flood of light from the brilliantly illuminated interior to escape for a second only. Then the door closed, and the house again presented a sombre exterior.

Finally fifteen or twenty guests, the full list of those invited, were gathered about the board in the banquet hall and the doors were tightly closed. The company was not to be disturbed under any circumstances.

LAETARE IS PRESENTED TO MISS CONWAY

Archbishop O'Connell Heads Brilliant Gathering of More Than 1,500 People.

BEFORE EYES OF SCORES

The third medal of Notre Dame University to be received by a resident of Boston was presented last night to Miss Katherine Eleanore Conway in the presence of more than 1,500 people who had gathered in Boston College Hall to witness the conferring of the rare mark of distinction that falls upon some American Catholic each year. Many of the best known Catholics of Greater Boston were present.

Henry W. Mackey, president of the Catholic Union, presided, while Archbishop William H. O'Connell, the representative of Archbishop Williams; Rev. J. W. Cavanaugh, president of Notre Dame University, and Bishop Bernard McQuaid of Rochester delivered addresses.

Offers Congratulations.

"To you, Miss Conway, I offer sincere congratulations, not in my own name only," said Archbishop O'Connell, "but in the name of Archbishop Williams, who, if it were possible, would be here himself in person.

"The humility of the faithful child of our great church has protected you against the danger of affecting to teach those, to whom in the spirit of faith you are the pupil, not the teacher. In the great work which stands before the church in this country to accomplish, the Catholic editor will have a tremendous share. Much has been done, but much more remains to be done for the faith in this land. In one way only can this great duty which devolves upon us of the present day be accomplished, not merely for the present, but for the promising future. That way is the one indicated by Christ in the beginning—unity of mind and heart."

In presenting the Laetare medal, President Cavanaugh said:

"To the young women of America you have spoken golden words of counsel, and if this were your only claim to gratitude it were enough to mark you among the daughters of the holy church. But you have done more than this, for you have illustrated by your example the virtues of Catholic womanhood, and have shown to your sisters how they, too, may lead converted lives within the shelter of the heart, and dignify a public career by noble service."

Speaks Her Gratitude.

Rev. Thomas J. Gasson, S. J., president of Boston College, read the reply of Miss Conway, in which she said:

"How shall I tell my debt to John Boyle O'Reilly, by whose wise precepts and vital memory I have tried to live and work ever since his lamented passing from the place which needed him? How much I owe to my own dear family of the John Boyle O'Reilly reading circle, to my chivalrous associates of the Catholic Union of Boston and to the president and faculty of Boston College, who have given me this splendid reception; whose past unfailing co-operation and support have made my dreams come true; to the kind encouragement of my friends in the priesthood, to the fraternity of the pen, religious and secular, throughout my working years in Rochester, Buffalo and Boston."

GOVERNOR IS REBUKED FOR ORCHARD INTERVIEW

DECLARE PRISON TALK WAS ARRANGED TO INFLUENCE HAYWOOD CASE.

BOISE, Ida., May 18.—Because of the circumstances surrounding published interviews with Harry Orchard, confessed slayer of former Governor Steunenberg, an investigation was ordered yesterday by Judge Fremont Wood, presiding at the trial of William D. Haywood, secretary of the Western Federation of Miners, for murder. The court will seek to have Governor Gooding punished for contempt of court for his part in the obtaining of the interviews, claiming that their publication was an attempt to bolster up the testimony of Orchard, who is the witness on which the State relies to convict Haywood. Governor Gooding was severely criticised in open court during the discussion of the interviews.

Governor in Contempt.

Judge Wood drew attention to their publication when he ascended the bench, and his request of counsel for advice as to the manner in which the Court should deal with the incident brought from the defence the charge that Governor Gooding and certain newspapers, mated by the disclosure that prejudice exists against Orchard, had sought to influence the jury, and asked that the Governor be cited for contempt.

In calling attention to the Orchard interviews, Judge Wood said that perhaps their publication was not an attempt to influence the jury, but, as it was likely to influence the jurors, he felt that something must be done to prevent a recurrence of such a thing in order to procure a jury.

The records of the court show that Clarence Darrow and E. F. Richardson of counsel for the defence made extended notes upon the interview which was held with Orchard under the auspices of Governor Gooding.

Mr. Richardson, who first commented the prosecution from all connection with the incident, said:

"For more than fifteen months Orchard has been incarcerated in the penitentiary, and secluded from all observers, as far as possible, and guarded in every possible way to prevent any communication with the outside. It occurred yesterday at the examination of one of the jurors that there was some question of the amount of credence that should be placed on the testimony of Orchard.

"The Governor of this State, who has done things which have been questioned throughout the entire United States, if not the civilized world, having the supreme charge of the penitentiary of this State and his appointee, Warden Whitney, who has at all times been his subservient and agreeable adviser and aider in all that he has done, took that particular portion of the newspaper fraternity who are reporting this case agreeably and colorably upon the side of the prosecution, to the penitentiary yesterday to interview Harry Orchard.

"It is patent as the fact that I stand here that it was done for the express purpose of rehabilitating Mr. Orchard and giving him credibility in the eyes of the jury and the eyes of the world, and it was a dastardly outrage upon this defence.

Would Prevent Fair Trial.

"If it was not entirely patent to the whole civilized world that the Governor of this State never intended that we should have a fair trial for these defendants here, it is patent at this time.

Mr. Darrow, who followed Mr. Richardson, said:

"Of course, there can be but one purpose in the conversation of the Governor and his friend, Mr. Orchard, and that was to influence this case at this time.

"It seems to me that this effort to give Mr. Orchard a credulous mind should come directly from the disclosures made by the questioning of veniremen as to what they thought of Orchard and his confession, and that, in view of this, they have permitted the newspapermen to see him and give out a lot of stuff which, upon its face, was manufactured.

ADDICKS MUST PAY GAS LOOT

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 18.—J. Edward Addicks has been commanded by the United States Circuit Court to pay with 6 per cent. interest from December, 1897, $500,000 to George Wharton Pepper, receiver of the Bay State Gas Works. The receiver was empowered to collect this sum. This crushing blow against Addicks is probably the last of his developments in the intricate legislation that has followed the collapse of Bay State Gas.

Every effort will be made by the receiver to collect the money from Addicks. Addicks was recently living in a modest furnished room in Bucks, hiding to avoid service in numerous suits brought by bankers, butchers, etc. He has now disappeared.

COAL TRUST MEN TO FACE COURT

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 18.—A decision handed down by Judge Charles G. SHOT IN FIGHT OVER $100 BILL

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Frank Mockbee, a liveryman, was shot and perhaps fatally wounded by Gaston P. Phillip, a wealthy guest of the Arlington Hotel, early to-day after a quarrel in the hotel over a $100 bill which Mockabee said he was trying to collect from Phillip. The two men had been out all night in Phillip's automobile and came back to the hotel at 4 o'clock. Phillip went to his room and was followed ten minutes later by Mockabee, and almost immediately guests on the sixth floor were startled by the report of a pistol in the corridor.

Manager Taylor and Clerk Brent found Mockabee lying on the floor, with Phillip bending over him. Phillip was arrested.

ACCUSE HOWARD GOULD; PLOT SECRETS KNOWN

Astonishing Part of Chief of New York's Detective Bureau Revealed.

NEW YORK, May 18.—Information was laid before Police Commissioner Bingham to-day revealing the secret of how Howard Gould plotted to use his society friends to get Captain McLaughlin, then in charge of the Central office detective bureau, to spend a day and night in Detroit in a trap. At the St. Regis yesterday it was said that Mrs. Gould, learning of this, would start her divorce suit Monday.

Commissioner Bingham followed his announcement that he would punish every man in the detective bureau who had been guilty of aiding Gould by ordering Deputy Commissioner Hanson to take personal charge of the investigation. Almost as soon as he had started he succeeded in getting Detective Lieutenant Peabody to admit that all his activity in the Gould case was caused by instructions he had received from McLaughlin.

H. H. Knowles, who became prominent at the time of the insurance investigation and one of Howard Gould's personal chums, was used by Gould, it is charged, in the scheme to make the New York detective bureau the Gould private agency.

It is alleged that shortly before the time Mrs. Gould learned that her husband was having her constantly shadowed, Mrs. Knowles invited her to dine at the Knowles house. Mrs. Knowles is declared to have said:

"I would like you to meet Mr. McLaughlin, who will be at our house. Mr. McLaughlin is in charge of the detective bureau in New York, and, of course, it is well to know him. We can never tell when he might be of assistance in case of robbery or similar trouble."

Strange Invitation Arouses Her Suspicions.

Mrs. Gould, so the Commissioner was informed, had no idea of how Mr. Gould was accused of plotting against her, and she agreed to go to the dinner. Subsequently, however, she began to think about the invitation, and decided that Inspector McLaughlin was a queer sort of person for her to meet at a social dinner. Furthermore, she had no need for him. At just about this time her suspicions were aroused, and she became convinced that she was being watched with a purpose.

While she did not believe either Mr. or Mrs. Knowles would lend themselves to any plan that might hurt her, she was certain the Knowles family was being used by someone else, and she did not like the idea.

At a later time Mrs. Knowles again invited her to dine, suggesting that it would be well to meet McLaughlin. Mrs. Gould, however, for a second time, avoided the Knowles dinner.

Commissioner Bingham was informed that this was Howard Gould's first effort to deliver his wife into McLaughlin's hands, and that he wanted the then inspector to meet the woman who was to be his prey and have plenty of opportunity to study her and lead her into conversation without any doubt being aroused in her mind.

Opportunity for the Detective Chief to Explain Writing.

"The rule of the department is," said Mr. Hanson, "to let a suspected police official understand what kind of insinuations are being made against him and to give him any opportunity he may desire to make an explanation in writing. While Captain McLaughlin has not been officially notified of any charges, or even insinuations, I presume he has read the newspapers, and if he had anything to say he would send a written explanation, as is customary."

Detective Peabody is said to be the most worried man in the detective bureau. He has received an intimation that if he cared to say anything about the Gould case he was at liberty to visit Commissioner Bingham.

Peabody went to the commissioner's office and made no denial of the fact that he had taken an important part in the case. However, he flatly denied that he had taken any part in a conspiracy. He had worked entirely under the orders of McLaughlin, he declared.

It was impossible to get any official statement either from Bingham or Hanson as to exactly what Peabody had said, but from one close to police headquarters the following facts were learned:

In February of this year, McLaughlin called Peabody into his private office and brought up the Gould case. The inspector told Peabody he wanted "Big Bill" Hawley, the noted criminal, brought to headquarters. This was because Hawley had been in touch with the Lamey Nicoll and Howard Gould.

Peabody was instructed to make a thorough search for Hawley. He was well known to the detective bureau. At that time, before he had taken up the task of helping to ruin Mrs. Gould's social standing, Hawley was in the city, waiting for something to happen.

Eventually Peabody met the criminal and took him to McLaughlin. It was subsequently that Hawley and the conversation with Gould on which he has recently based his action for $250,000 against Gould. Hawley's report to police headquarters was to the effect that he could be hired to do any kind of evil work.

After the exit of Hawley upon McLaughlin, Peabody says he was instructed to accompany Hawley to the home of the man Scholes, who was supposed to be able to give information about Mrs. Gould and a man named Dawson.

According to the AMERICAN'S information this is all Peabody told the commissioner, but he is to be believed in a position to make a further statement if he so cares.

MRS. EDDY ASSIGNS HER $871,861 ESTATE IN TRUST

Exact Amount of Christian Science Leader's Fortune Made Public in Official Figures in Affidavit.

CONCORD, N. H., May 18.—It was officially shown to-day that the fortune of the Rev. Mary Baker G. Eddy amounts to exactly $871,861.46, exclusive of the comparatively small holdings of real estate. This is the sum she signed over to the three trustees. The opposition has charged that she has millions which have been improperly diverted.

Calvin A. Frye is exonerated by the statement filed in court and sworn to, of any manipulation of the funds. The affidavits laid before the court by General U. S. Streeter, Mrs. Eddy's personal counsel, are extremely interesting. The move is of a most unusual nature. Every item of Mrs. Eddy's estate is shown. It is the knowledge of the defense. The hearing of the now famous suit against Frye and others comes up next Monday.

The first affidavit is that of Harvey S. Chase of Boston, an expert accountant, who has been engaged in an examination of the accounts of Mr. Frye and others who have had to do with the receipt and expenditure of money at Pleasant View during the past fifteen years.

$236,200 IN 1899.

The sum of Mrs. Eddy's fortune has grown to its present proportions from $236,209, in 1899, at which time Mrs. Eddy had set apart $100,000 for the erection of her church at Concord, a sum which she later turned over to the trustees of that church.

Mr. Frye is exonerated by Mr. Chase from any charge of manipulating the funds to his own advantage. He was not always exact in his accounting, yet there is no evidence of wrongdoing. "Many clerical errors appear in the books," says the affidavit, "but taken altogether the balance of errors is in Mr. Frye's favor; that is to say, Mr. Frye has made more errors against himself than against Mrs. Eddy, so that the latter or her trustees will have to pay over a balance of cash to Mr. Frye when the time for final adjustment of these accounts arrives. From the examination thus far made it appears that the balance due from the trustees to Mr. Frye will amount to $677.41."

Mrs. Eddy's taxes have been raised, being now practically five times what they were last year. The assessors have valued her property at $205,850, taking it for granted that the $500,000 bond by the trustees represented twice the value of her property. Last year she paid taxes on a valuation of $54,850.

The property as described in the affidavits is divided as follows: Par value of bonds, $780,000; promissory notes, $50,000; on deposit in banks, $8,614.64; cash and cash items, $24,476.82; total $871,861.46.

MRS. EDDY READ DEED.

Fred N. Ladd, of Concord, treasurer of the Loan and Trust Savings Bank, made the other affidavit, which describes the appearance and manner of Mrs. Eddy at the time of the filing of the deed of trust. Mr. Ladd has known Mrs. Eddy personally since 1892, his mother and Mrs. Eddy being second cousins and friends from childhood. Mr. Ladd has audited Mrs. Eddy's accounts since 1898, at the request of Calvin A. Frye.

He was present when the trust deed was executed on March 14, 1907. He says in the affidavit:

WAS GREETED CORDIALLY.

"Mrs. Eddy greeted us most cordially. Mr. Streeter handed her one of the two duplicates of the deed and handed the other to Mr. Ladd.

"Mrs. Eddy said:

"'Shall I read this?'

"And Mr. Streeter suggested that she do so.

"Mrs. Eddy then said:

"'Shall I read it out loud "Mr. Streeter said he thought she had better.

"So Mrs. Eddy proceeded to read the deed aloud, word for word, from the beginning to the end, and her manner of reading showed that she thoroughly understood all its provisions.

"During the reading she paused from time to time and made comments on certain of the provisions and presented her views. 'At one time, she stopped and said:

"'You will note that I am reading this without my glasses and I do not have to wrinkle it away off, either.'

"I remember that when she had read Article Fourth as follows:

"'Fourth—At the termination of my earthly life, this trust shall terminate, and all the personal estate then held by my said trustees shall pass to the executor of my last will and the codicils thereto, to be disposed of in accordance with the provisions thereof,' she stopped and, with emphatic voice and gesture, said: 'That is just what I want.'

"After she had finished reading she made the remark, in substance, that she understood she was putting all her property out of her hands, and then said, 'I will sign that,' and she signed both originals and Mr. Streeter and I then signed as witnesses, and the three trustees signed the statement at the end of each deed accepting the trust."

AN ACCURATE STATEMENT.

"The foregoing is an accurate statement as near as I can remember of what occurred. There was no suggestion by anybody with reference to her signing the deed. When she had finished reading, and made the remark above stated, she said, in substance, 'I understood the document and I am ready to sign it. She executed and gave a copy of which is as follows:

Pleasant View,
Concord, N. H.,

March 6, 1907.

I hereby appoint Fred N. Ladd my attorney to take all papers and all the contents of my safe locks at First National Bank in Concord, N. H., and transfer them to the trustees that I have to-day selected, namely, Hon. Henry M. Baker, of Bow, N. H., Archibald McClean, of Boston, Mass., and Josiah E. Fernald, of Concord, New Hampshire.

(Signed) Mary Baker G. Eddy.

"No Misappropriation."

Mr. Ladd's affidavit emphatically declared that, "No money or securities have been wrongfully misappropriated or diverted from Mrs. Eddy's property, by Calvin A. Frye, Alfred Farlow, Irving C. Tomlinson, Ira O. Knapp, William B. Johnson, Stephen A. Chase, Joseph Armstrong, Edward A. Kimball, Herman S. Hering, Lewis C. Strang, or by anybody else."

"I also have reason to believe and do believe that except Mr. Frye none of said ten men has ever had anything to do with the management, control or distribution of any of Mrs. Eddy's income or securities or other property, or information about the same, except in the most general way."

JUDGE FALLON AND CREED IN SHARP CLASH

Former Representative Chides Court for Allowing Continuance of Case.

Former Representative James E. Creed criticized Judge Fallon in the South Boston Court to-day, because the latter granted the request of the police for a continuance of a case, when the attorney thought there was no reason why his client should not be given a hearing.

The case was that of Thomas O'Donnell who, with his brother, is charged with stabbing Patrick J. Manning on 1st Saturday night.

"I am disposed to grant this continuance," said Judge Fallon, after Officer Sullivan had requested it and Lawyer Creed had interposed an objection.

"I see no reason why this complainant should not be present this morning. My client has put in a week and has been inconvenienced to be here, and Manning should have been present," said Lawyer Creed in reply.

"I invariably grant continuances when there is good cause," replied Judge Fallon, "and I am disposed to continue this case."

"Well, you're supreme in this court," Lawyer Creed said.

"I have always granted continuances for you when you have requested them in this court," Judge Fallon said to Mr. Creed.

"I remember several occasions when I requested continuances with good cause shown and was refused," remarked Attorney Creed.

"We will have no further discussion about the matter, the case stands continued until Tuesday," said Judge Fallon in

OPPOSE MAIL FRAUD APPEAL

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The Department of Justice has filed in the Supreme Court of the United States a petition in opposition to that of Stanley Francis, asking that the Supreme Court review the judgment of the federal courts of Pennsylvania, which sentenced him to five years in the penitentiary and to pay a fine of $5,000 for conspiracy to use the mails to defraud.

Francis was connected with the Storey Cotton Company, which is charged with converting to its own use about $1,200,000 money of the depositors.

The department takes the position that the act of placing a letter or circular in the mails in pursuance of one common scheme or artifice to defraud, constitutes a separate and distinct violation of the laws, and that the offender is subject to punishment for each violation.

ANTI-MERGER BILL BLOW AT WHITNEY BOOM

Democratic Protest Against New Haven Grab of B.&M. May Block His Candidacy.

FIGHT TO SMASH TRUST

"For the purpose of preventing the contemplated merger of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company and the Boston & Maine Railroad Company," ten of the twelve Democrats in the Massachusetts Senate have petitioned that body for leave to introduce a bill to prohibit investments by railroad corporations in the stock of other railroad corporations. The measure is a direct blow at Henry M. Whitney's boom for Governor.

The bill will on Monday be referred to the Senate Committee on Rules. On this committee are President Chappie of Salem and Senators Carter of Brockton, Murlock of New Bedford, Shaw of Manchester and Meigs of Boston. The last named is the only Democrat in the lot. He is also one of the petitioners.

The Democrats who have not signed are Senators Mahoney of Boston and MacLeod of Cambridge. MacLeod is a member of the Committee on Street Railways. Mahoney, who is on the Railroads Committee, is one of those who will report to-day the Shoe Machinery Bill, go along to represent without their votes on one side or the other.

Hayes Backer of Measure.

Senator Hayes, once the Democratic Mayor of the Republican city of Somerville, is credited with being one of the moving spirits behind the petition and the bill. With this exception, however, everybody else on the Democratic side fell into line enthusiastically. Acute political observers declare the measure has an important bearing on the campaign of Henry M. Whitney for this year's Democratic nomination for Governor. It was freely said that Mr. Whitney's candidacy has received a black eye, and that no remedy in sight will remove the discoloration this side of election day.

Whitney, who will be sixty-six years old next Fall, is a director in the Boston & Maine railroad. He is also a director in the American Express Company, which owns and votes the largest single block of Boston & Maine stock. Mr. Whitney's name has been prominent in the news stories of the week bearing on the proposed acquirement of Boston & Maine stock by New York, New Haven & Hartford interests. He is said to be enthusiastically in favor of the combine.

Combine Means State's Ruin.

"We believe," their petition says, in part, "that it is contrary to the spirit of our laws that any such combination as is now proposed should be allowed. Can anyone say that the next step will not be consolidation of all railroad companies in the Commonwealth under one head?

"All our railroads would then be in the control of those whose only interest is naturally absolutely selfish, and the industries and commerce of the Commonwealth, which everyone knows, are greatly affected by railroad systems, will be at the mercy of those only interested, set aside from securing dividends from these railroads, is the overwhelming sentiment of the great city of New York.

"Can we any longer, after our experience with the New York Central Railroad, hope for any increase in our present trade and any improvement in the roadbed, rolling stock, equipment or stations, or any increase in the comforts or conveniences, or any greater speed in their service?

"The railroads to Boston have been during the past year when improvements were suggested, contemptuously referred to by the owners of the Vanderbilt system as 'side tracks.' Shall we permit without protest the last railroad system now controlled by Massachusetts citizens to pass from us?

To Smash the Merger.

The petitioners are Senators Mitchell, Vahey, Cassidy, Clark, Dixon, Hayes, Mellen, Linehan, Curley and McMahon.

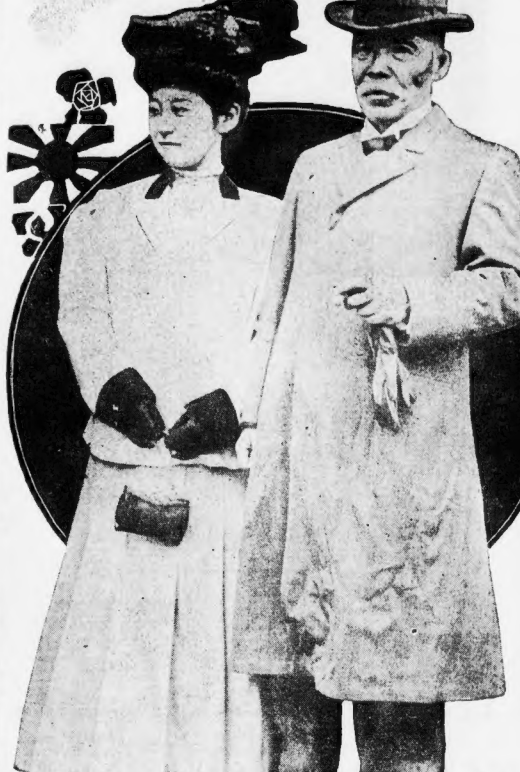
The first section of the proposed bill provides that no railroad or street railway corporation shall, directly or indirectly, acquire control or have any interest in the stocks, bonds or obligations of any similar corporation.

In Section 2 comes a provision that any such corporation now having an interest in a similar company shall, "as soon after the passage of this act as reasonably may be," and in no event later than December 31 of next year, dispose of all such stocks or bonds and formulate all such interest and control.

In the third section the bill provides that the Supreme Judicial Court shall have full jurisdiction upon petition of the Attorney General, to compel observance of the act and of the anti-merger law of 1906.

JAPAN'S WAR HERO AND HIS NIECE

Snapshot of General Baron Kuroki and young woman taken in New York two days ago.



HUB PLANNING BIG WELCOME FOR KUROKI

Japanese War Hero Will Also Be Harvard's Guest During Visit Here Next Week.

AUTO RIDES AND BANQUETS

Boston and Cambridge await with open arms the coming of General Baron Kuroki next week. The Japanese war hero, who has been invited to the United States with his staff, has been feted and cheered everywhere he has been, will be accorded no less hearty a welcome when he visits the Bay State.

General Kuroki will not be given any extensive military reception when he visits the Hub, but Governor Guild and Mayor Fitzgerald, with many other distinguished citizens, intend to make the General's stay a memorable one. Full plans have not been made, but it is intended that in Boston a banquet will be tendered the Japanese general either on Tuesday or Wednesday evening. Leading Japanese will be in charge, and Dr. Harris Kennedy, president of the Nippon Club, will direct arrangements. There will follow an auto trip about Boston and vicinity.

At Harvard—for the General intends to visit Harvard as well as Yale University—Kuroki will be royally entertained by not only the select little Japanese Club, but by the student body itself. There will be "Banzais!" enough and to spare when the cheering gets going. There are about a dozen Japanese undergrads in Cambridge, and all are quivering with delight that General Kuroki, the dauntless old battle-scarred veteran, has seen fit to pay them a call.

General Kuroki will be shown through the university, the Peabody museum, the Union and the libraries. An elaborate banquet is expected to follow in the evening, and the General will be asked to make a speech.

SUBWAY'S ODORS AND NOISES TOO MUCH FOR KUROKI

NEW YORK, May 18.—General Kuroki does not like our subways. He tried it the day at the most favorable time for obtaining a realistic impression. When he emerged into the bright air at South Ferry he authorized his interpreter to say to the newspaper reporters:

"I must confess that the first bad impression I have had of New York is the subway. Why do they not have seats for all? It is a close stuffy hole in the ground, with the most distracting and head-splitting noises I do not like."

Colonel Johnston of the staff of General Fred D. Grant, commander of the Department of the East, called at the Hotel Astor at 9 o'clock, and General Kuroki, accompanied by four members of his staff and by General Oliver E. Wood, left a few minutes later.

The party squeezed into a train at the Grand Central Station. When near the centre they were recognized by nearly every one. A middle-aged man, who had let a dozen women stand, got up and offered his seat to Kuroki, the man and the general did five minutes of Alphonse and Gaston stunts of bowing with the result that Kuroki took the seat.

At South Ferry the boat, General Hancock, took the party to Governor's Island, where a battery of seventeen guns fired.

Extraordinary precautions have been taken even since General Kuroki and his staff landed at Seattle to see that no harm comes to him. Numerous communications have been received by the secret service department, warning them that anarchists intended to seek an opportunity to attack Kuroki while in this country.

IMMIGRATION COMMISSION SAILS TO-DAY

Will Visit All European Countries and Investigate Methods and Conditions.

LODGE REMAINS AT HOME

The special commission appointed by the Federal government to make an exhaustive study of immigration conditions abroad will sail from New York on the White Star liner Canopic for Naples at 2:30 this afternoon.

Wives and daughters of several of the commissioners and a baker's dozen or so of secretaries will accompany them. The commission is made up of three United States Senators, three Representatives and three others named by President Roosevelt. Each commissioner is allowed one secretary, and the commission at-large is allowed three extra secretaries. The traveling expenses are paid by the government.

The commissioners will separate at Naples, each one going in a different immigration centre, one to Russia, one to Belgium and others to Sweden, England, France, Poland, Germany and so on. Each one will get all information possible concerning immigrants to this country, methods of immigration examination and other points, with a particular view of ascertaining if foreign countries are dumping their criminal, insane and pauper classes into America.

The party will be made up of Senator William P. Dillingham of Vermont, Senator A. C. Latimer of South Carolina, Mrs. Latimer and Miss Latimer, Representative Benjamin F. Howell of New Jersey and Mrs. Howell, Representative William S. Bennet of New York and Mrs. Bennet, Representative John L. Burnett of Alabama, Mrs. Burnett and Phil Burnett, William R. Wheeler, Mrs. Wheeler and Miss Jane Wheeler of San Francisco, Professor Charles P. Neal, Commissioner of Labor; Professor J. W. Jenks of Cornell, Ithaca; esq. Morton Crane, Walter H. Husband, Albert M. Carpenter, H. DeV. Hicker and Milton H. Rumbarger.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts is a member of the senatorial contingent on the commission, but he will not accompany the party.

COUNTESS ON SHIP PUFFED CIGARETTES

Passengers on Trans-Atlantic Liner Startled by Action of Beautiful American Girl.

"WHY NOT?" SHE ASKS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, May 18.—"It is true that I smoked cigarettes on the deck of the steamship Providencia on the way here," said Countess Lochenfel at the home of her father, John Wyman, at Port Morris, to-day, "but I did not know that it was going to create such a fuss. I shall smoke no more in this country, and that means for two months."

The Countess was discussing an incident of the trip of the Pennsylvania, of the Hamburg-American Line, which arrived yesterday. There were thirty-three cabin passengers, and twenty-seven of them were women. The six men stayed in the smoking room. The women ruled the rest of the ship, and many of them smoked cigarettes.

On the first night out the Countess, who is an American girl, found an easy chair on deck after dinner and lit a cigarette. She smoked with much nonchalance and ease that bespoke practice, and the other women watched her admiringly or evidently, as the case might be.

Daily the Countess could be seen puffing her cigarette on deck, and when darkness fell, the presence of three or four glowing sparks where the women were gathered in a group told of other devotees of the weed among the passengers.

The Countess expressed surprise that her smoking should have caused comment.

"I did not see any reason why I should deprive myself on ship board of a privilege which I enjoyed at home in Germany," she said, "but there were other women on board who also enjoyed their cigarettes, when they felt so inclined.

"In Germany all of the titled women and women of gentle birth smoke cigarettes. My mother-in-law is an inveterate smoker. But locality has much to do with such matters."

MAYOR GIVES DEER ISLAND JOB TO CHUM

City politicians to-day are unanimous in the declaration that the Mayor's appointment of former Police Captain Frederick G. Hoffman to be master at the Deer Island House of Correction is the strongest appointment made by His Honor in the sixteen months he has filled the Mayor's chair, while they are admittedly disappointed that he did not do a "job."

That the choice was the Mayor's own no one at City Hall doubts, although Commissioner Martin, who was allowed to announce the appointment, denied that the Mayor had anything to do with it.

North End Chums.

Hoffman and the Mayor were firm friends while the former police captain was at the Hanover street station and the Mayor was a resident of the "dear old North End."

The new master at Deer Island is a veteran and retired from the Police Department when Judge Emmons was chairman of the Police Commission. While not generally known, Captain Hoffman's retirement was due to friction that developed over an attempt to bring him to headquarters to displace Chief Watts as head of the detective force, it being planned to shelve the latter.

The appointment of Captain Hoffman will save the city $1,250 a year, for while the salary of the master of the House of Correction is $2,500, Captain Hoffman receives $1,250 a year pension from the Police Department, and will therefore only receive one half of the master's salary.

Long Served as Officer.

He is eight years old and a native of North Cambridge. He was appointed to the police force May 20, 1872, and assigned to the Lagrange street station. Five nine years he did night duty in the Cove district, and in 1881 was sent to the Dudley street station as lieutenant, and August 30, 1894, was made captain and sent to the Hanover station, South Boston. Later he went to the Roxbury Crossing station, at the time of his retirement was captain of the Hanover street district.

BROKE RULE TO AID JOHN L.'S NEPHEW

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Army men criticise President Roosevelt's order for reinstating John L. Lennon, nephew of John L. Sullivan in the Marine Corps as a violation of military tradition, as the rule of the army, navy and marine corps has always been that a dishonorably discharged man could never enter the service.

300,000 IMMIGRANTS.

ST. JOHN, N. B., May 18.—Canadian immigration officials look for at least 300,000 new settlers in the Dominion during the current year.

COMMITTEE TO BABY IN ARMS, POLITELY KILL BOYNTON BILL

Little Doubt in Minds of Beacon Hill Legislators as to Result of Conference.

Moody Boynton and his railroad are in the hands of a legislative committee of conference. The committee will get together early next week. Nobody on Beacon Hill doubts for a minute that the result of its deliberations will be a bitter blow to the nopes of the white-haired inventor of what is called the "bicycle" railway.

The House of Representatives agrees with the old inventor that the charter of his Boston, Quincy & Fall River Railroad ought to be again renewed. The Senate is opposed to the proposition. As is usual in such cases, a committee of conference comes together.

Committee Against Boynton.

Speaker John N. Cole of Andover has named as the committee on the part of the House, Captain Thomas Pattison of Barnstable, chairman of the Committee on Public Lighting and sponsor for a bill which would have allowed a $26,000,000 lighting monopoly in the city of Boston; March 6, Bennett of Boston and Samuel Coffin of West Newbury. Although there has been no roll call, the House is overwhelmingly in favor of Moody Boynton. Representative Coffin is known to be in favor of Boynton.

The old inventor's plan was opposed before the Committee on Street Railways by counsel for the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company.

Collapsing as she reached the hospital with her injured brother of five years in her arms, Josephine Kotonski of No. 23 Newland street, the "little mother" of a family of six, won the outspoken admiration of the physicians of the Homeopathic Hospital yesterday for her pluck and devotion. She is but seventeen years old.

Eddie Kotonski, her little brother, fell from a second-story window to the ground, a distance of twenty feet. He lay there unconscious, internally injured and with a broken jaw. Josephine picked up the unconscious little form and screamed across to a neighbor.

Mrs. Martin, call the ambulance at once and I'll race them to the hospital. Eddie is dying, and I am going to try and carry him.

Staggering out through Blackstone Park, the plucky little girl with her human burden, started down Harrison avenue toward Newton street. Just as she saw the City Hospital to the distance she turned white, dropped to her knees and then crumpled in a senseless heap in the gutter. The ambulance from the East Dedham street police station arrived within a couple of minutes, and they found two doctors from the Homeopathic Hospital already reviving the girl. Leaving her in the care of the doctors, they rushed the baby boy to the hospital.

The girl finally revived and insisted on being driven to the City Hospital, where she was soon at her brother's bedside. Not until she learned that the little boy was out of danger did she consent to be taken home by the physicians and put to bed.

LED THE ORCHESTRA BUT GOT THE HOOK

Sister teams were the rule at the Columbia theatre show last night, pretty girls all, and clever in their specialties. The Knowles sisters of Roxbury made a decided hit in their singing and dancing, and the Jordan sisters, also of Roxbury, excelled in their specialty. The star evening was supplied when the king of amateurs, George Russell, led the orchestra for a few minutes, creating as much merriment as a burlesque show. He had Creatore, Sousa and even Director Tobin beaten several yards, but, sad to relate, the hook overtook him at an inopportune moment, separating George from the tail of his stylish black coat. Harry Evans, an English butcher, tried poetry, and was given a chance to see the stage scenery from the rear. The Foley brothers of Roxbury, the dancing boys, were given first prize. Elsie Russell came next in favor.

SAYS SCHMITZ'S WIFE HANDLED GRAFT FUNDS

Brave Sister of Injured Boy Carries Him to Medical Aid and Falls Exhausted.

Ruef, in Sensational Confession, Drags Name of Woman Into Frisco Conspiracy.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., May 18.—Mrs. Eugene G. Schmitz, wife of the indicted Mayor, was his confidential bookkeeper, and knew of all the moneys he received from every source, according to a statement made to the grand jury by Abraham Ruef to-day.

Ruef told the inquisitors that Mrs. Schmitz had acted as the Mayor's secretary during the seaseless heap in the gutter. The ambulance from the East Dedham street police station arrived within a couple of minutes, and they found two doctors from the Homeopathic Hospital already reviving the girl.

Leaving her in the care of the doctors, they rushed the baby boy to the hospital.

The girl finally revived and insisted on being driven to the City Hospital, where she was soon at her brother's bedside. Not until she learned that the little boy was out of danger did she consent to be taken home by the physicians and put to bed.

Mayor Schmitz issued a statement to-day which declared that the report that he was preparing to turn over the duties and powers of the office of Mayor to other persons was groundless, and that he is considering no such action.

"In an interview the Mayor said:

"I know nothing of what Ruef has told the grand jury. The only information I have is what I have read in the newspapers. If Ruef has told the grand jury that I received any bribe money, Ruef is a liar.

This afternoon William Crocker, head of the Crocker Bank, who was president of the Parkside Company; Fred Tillman, one of the directors of the company, and Attorney Merrion, chief counsel, were before the grand jury. This session completed the investigation of the United Railroads, and it is reported the prosecution is preparing indictments for two officials of the company.

While none of those engaged in the prosecution will state who the two officials are, it is believed that when the jurors reassemble they will take with them the names of President Calhoun and Attorney Tirey L. Ford of the United Railroads.

BLACK HAND MAKES ITS THIRD DEMAND

LYNN, May 18.—The Black Hand Society has for the third time made a demand upon Grocer Pietangelo D'Arcangelo, who recently caused the arrest of Franco Porcio, who told the grocer that if the $1,000 demanded by mail was not paid D'Arcangelo would be killed.

D'Arcangelo keeps his wife and child under the guard of two hired men.

STEAM KILLS MAN IN BATH

By Boston American Leased Wire.

PITTSBURG, May 18.—Imprisoned in the steamroom of the Turkish bath at the Washington Park Natatorium four men, Edward Schwartz, a raiser, and three jurors, Jacob Goldfarb, Benjamin Goldsaft and Isidore Bernardi, were caught by a sudden rush of steam in the small compartment and almost boiled alive.

Schwartz died in the hospital and the other three men are in a serious condition.

PLAN TO ROB HOTEL GUESTS

A French Canadian youth, about nineteen years old, and giving his name and address as Joseph Ferreau of No. 185 Harrison avenue, comes into the Municipal Court, to-day, on the charge of larceny of a watch and chain from Leo T. Merlin of No. 451 Shawmut avenue.

In connection with this case the police say they are on the trail of a clever attempt to work the hotels and restaurants by following up arrests and getting hold of any moneys or any jewelry of value on them.

20,000 COTTON WORKERS WILL DEMAND RAISE

Special to the Boston American.

LOWELL, May 18.—Operatives employed in the seven cotton mills of the city will make a demand for an increase of 10 per cent. in wages at a meeting of the Trades and Labor Council to be held to-morrow. The mills employ about 20,000 operatives. It is pointed out that the seven mills have enjoyed great prosperity, and that the operatives feel that they are not in any other manufacturing city. The agents have been troubled recently by the scarcity of skilled help, many of the operatives having gone to other cities where they could secure higher wages.

The mills are the Lawrence Manufacturing Company, the Tremont and Suffolk, the Merrimac Manufacturing Company, the Boott Cotton Mills, the Appleton Manufacturing Company, the Massachusetts and the Hamilton Manufacturing Company.

COREY WEDDING SCANDAL MAKES PASTOR'S WIFE ILL

Denunciation of Husband for Officiating at Marriage Causes Her to Succumb to Nervous Prostration.

By Boston American Leased Wire

NEW YORK, May 18.—While Steel President William Ellis Corey and his actress bride, who was Miss Mabelle Gilman are on the Kaiser Wilhelm II, nearing the shores of Europe where they will spend their honeymoon, Mrs. John S. Clark, wife of Rev. Dr. Clark, who performed the marriage ceremony has succumbed to an attack of nervous prostration. Her illness is directly due to Corey-Gilman marriage and the consequent storm of indignation which burst over his head in the Rushwick Avenue Congregational Church, of which he is pastor.

Dr. W. S. Bradley, of No. 1108 Bushwick avenue, her family physician was summoned in haste. He found Mrs. Clark in bed in a serious condition.

Is Dangerously Ill.

"She is dangerously ill," said Dr. Bradley last night. "Enough has been said about the Corey-Gilman case to break any woman down, and Mrs. Clark has succumbed." No one is allowed to see her.

Pastor Clark's wife, somewhat older than he, is tall, slender, handsome, with hair turning gray. According to her friends she has keenly resented what Dr. Clark's admirers call the rough shod manner in which deacons and trustees rode over him on Thursday night.

The pastor's error was wiped out in tears at a stormy meeting last evening. Senior Deacon William Schell, in a touching little address, then asked that the congregation show its loyalty and sympathy and confidence by rising. The 500 men and women present rose as one. Most of the women had handkerchiefs to their eyes, and not a few men shed tears which they did not try to conceal. Dr. Clark stood with his arms folded and his head bowed low.

As the members resumed their chairs Deacon Schell extended his hand to the pastor. Then the latter led a short prayer expressing thankfulness for the love of his flock and requesting Divine aid for the strength not to err in future.

First Wife Mother's Guest.

According to dispatches from Philadelphia Mr. Corey's mother is entertaining his cast-off wife in the historic farm house near Thorndale, Chester county, which was bought last January by the Steel President and placed in his mother's name.

Once the house was occupied and occupied by the late Edward Y. Buchanan, brother of President Buchanan. It was the girlhood home of Mrs. A. J. Cassatt, widow of the president of the Pennsylvania railroad.

It is expected that Corey's son will spend his summer vacation on the place, and probably his mother will be with him. It is the intention of the mother, Mrs. Corey, to make the farmhouse her permanent home.

TELEGRAPH COMPANIES FORM PACT

Western Union and Postal Unite to Boost Tolls and Cut Expenses $2,400,000.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, May 18.—Patrons, employes and hotels furnishing booths to the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies are just awakening to the fact, although an actual consolidation of the two giant corporations may not have been effected, yet a hard and fast working agreement has been reached. They realize that it means increased tolls, decreased disbursements in the way of salaries and station rentals, fewer employes and a great impairment in the rapidity and efficiency of service.

The compact will mean a saving of about $2,400,000 a year to the telegraph companies.

Impairs Rapidity.

The Western Union has a capital stock of $100,000,000. It has 1,184,557 miles of wire and 24,000 offices. It handles about 68,000,000 messages a year. Its income is $29,832,625, and the net profit $7,188,000.

The Postal Telegraph Company is an underlying company of the holding concern known as the MacKay Company, which has a capital stock of $100,000,000, equally divided between preferred and common stock. The stock pays 4 per cent. for the preferred and 2 per cent. for the common. It has nearly two thousand offices, but its business is not so fully reported as is that of the Western Union.

In all large hotels, where booths are maintained by the telegraph companies, the hotel management has been served with notice that rentals are to be greatly reduced. The hotel managements have accepted this reduction or the companies will withdraw.

Tolls Go Up.

In places where joint offices have been maintained one operator has handled the traffic of both companies and divided the business equitably between the two. In some instances the employe is not even an operator, only a mere attendant, paid a nominal sum, who takes messages, accepts payments for them and, when a sufficient number is accumulated, transmits them by messenger to the nearest district station, for wire service. In the former case the wire service is to be abandoned for the latter method of procedure.

It was only a few weeks ago that the two companies simultaneously announced an increase in the telegraph toll rate of from 20 to 60 per cent.

Employes Discharged.

Almost coincident with the elevation in prices began the reduction in rentals paid, the cutting off of employes and the contraction in service.

All hotels and big institutions where telegraph booths are located, formerly had the privilege of franking messages sent by the property owners.

This has either been done away with or curtailed. All franks were called in the first of the year and this privilege abolished.

How Telegraph Companies Save Millions by Compact

By the working agreement between the Postal and the Western Union Telegraph Companies, it is expected that the following savings will be effected at the cost of excellence in service.

Decreased rentals for booths in business houses, hotels and other institutions over the country	$800,000
Abandonment, consolidation and utilization of joint offices	1,000,000
Salaries saved by discharging employes expense of competition and reduction in wire stringing and extensions competition made necessary.	600,000
Yearly saving	$2,400,000

BEAR HELPLESS WOMAN FROM BURNING HOME

SALEM, May 18.—Mrs. Moses Downs, who was in bed helpless from an attack of paralysis, was rescued from her burning home at No. 19 Symonds court at 6 o'clock to-day by four young men, Arthur Brown, Samuel Melcher, Arthur Powell and L. E. Curtis.

Two children of Mrs. Charles P. Early, another tenant of the house, were forgotten under the excitement following the discovery of the fire and remained in the building until the blaze had been almost extinguished. Then they were carried out none the worse for their experience. The fire began in the Early tenement and did damage estimated at $1,500.

ACCUSED BY DYING GIRL

Special to the Boston American.

FITCHBURG, May 18.—Much interest is being taken in this city in the case of Dr. Nathaniel Bixby, a well known physician, who has just been held in $1,500 bail for the Superior Court on a charge of having been responsible for the death of twenty-two-year-old Ethel A. Ricker, who died from blood poisoning alleged to have been caused by criminal treatment.

The girl's mother, Mrs. Ella Ricker, testified at a police court hearing that she had accompanied her daughter to Dr. Wallis's office. When the girl was dying her mother told the court she said: "If I die Dr. Wallis will be sent to prison."

Dr. Wallis did not offer any evidence in defence of himself at the preliminary examination.

EDWARDS SAYS HE USED FISTS ON DIPLOMAT

Denies Having Cut Peruvian Attache with Knife or Ring.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Colonel Charles A. Edwards, secretary of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, who is under $2,000 bonds for his appearance in Police Court next Monday to answer to a charge of having assaulted Senor Alejandro Garland, an attache of the Peruvian Legation, gave the following version of the affair to-day:

"Garland, while walking with a woman near the DeSoto apartment house Wednesday night, bumped into me and told me to get off the street. I replied 'No; I'll not get off the street, but you'd better get off the earth.' With that I waded into him and cuffed him good and plenty. Possibly I cut him up a lot, but not with a knife, nor with a ring, nor with anything but my bare knuckles."

Garland is still suffering from his injuries and is said to be in a rather serious condition. He refused to prosecute, however. The warrant for Edwards's arrest was sworn out by the janitor of the apartment house, who witnessed the fight. It was served in the capitol building late yesterday, while Edwards was having a word alteration with Miss Louise Beall, the woman who was in the company of Garland when the fight took place.

NETHERSOLE IN PINERO PLAY

The company of actors that addresses itself to the playing of "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" starts with the advantage of having a splendid dramatic work to handle. Miss Nethersole and her associates who gave Mr. Pinero's play at the Hollis Street Theatre last evening did all that an exceptionally capable organization could do toward supplementing the fine work of the dramatist.

As a technician Mr. Pinero has no superior in the contemporary drama. Miss Nethersole's methods are her own. They are artistic methods and her company follows its leader.

The result of last evening was a performance that was almost flawless of a play that very closely approaches perfection.

Miss Nethersole's health is not so robust as it has been. But the warmth of her reception Thursday evening and the friendliness of the audience must have proved to her that her failing health could not added another to the many reasons that Boston has for caring for her.

Frank Mills and William Clark each an admirable actor, headed the supporting company and did much to furnish a fitting frame in which Miss Nethersole's fine discerning Paula Tanqueray gave a fine exhibition of acting.

The new general manager for the Point of Pines Park has been chosen by the Board of Directors. He is Charles P. Salisbury, well known in this city as manager of the Columbia Theatre for the summers and of the old Boston Music Hall for H. S. Allen.

Mr. Salisbury is a practical showman, one of the cleverest in the business. It was he who first brought Eugene O'Neill to the attention of Boston theatregoers and under his management his name was increased enormously during his engagement at the Tremont.

For the past few years Mr. Salisbury has been manager of Captain Boldt's famous chain of parks in the West, and also manager of the Lagoon amusement park but one in the country, that at St. Louis, called the Forest Park Highlands. He has made a success of every one of these enterprises, and at the Point of Pines this Summer he will have an opportunity to put his effect all the knowledge and experienced gained by his work of the past years.

Eastman was twenty-six years of age and lived at No. 30 Pratt street, Allston.

A Soft Voice Has a Charm That Is Well Worth Cultivating

By Beatrice Fairfax

It has been said that one of the most excellent things in woman was a soft voice. It is a quality which it is quite possible to cultivate, and it is too bad that girls do not place a higher value on it.

The average American girl has not a pretty voice. She speaks from the top of her head, or through her nose, and makes no attempt to modulate her tones.

I want you to try and get over this habit, girls. Get your voice down, speak softly and try and pronounce your words as prettily as you can.

Don't say "carry" for "very." Don't pronounce the word "girl" as though it was spelled "gurl." "Squirrel" is not pronounced "squirl," but just as it is spelled.

No Excuse for It

FOREIGNERS always laugh at our pronunciation, and sometimes it is not to be wondered at. We do use some very queer sounding words occasionally. There is no excuse for speaking through your nose nor at the top of your voice.

Going home on the "L," or subway any day it is quite possible to hear much private family history if one so desires. A girl will talk to her girl friend in what she fondly imagines to be a confidential tone, but any one across the car can hear every word she says.

Mothers should teach their children to speak softly. Often the charm of a pretty girl is quite spoiled when she opens her lips and speaks in a loud nasal voice.

Not long ago I went to a reception given by Signor Campanini, the great operatic conductor. With but few exceptions his guests were the prima donnas Italian singers who had sung in opera all Winter. Not a harsh tone was heard in that room, the sound was like one note of purest music.

I very much fear that if that had been a gathering of American girls the general tone would have been far from harmonious.

All a Girl's Fault

IT is all your own fault, girls, you can have pleasant speaking voices if you choose to take the trouble to make them so. The first thing to practice is speaking in a low tone. Then get your voice away from your nose and into your mouth. Try and speak from the front of your mouth, not from your throat.

And while we are on the subject, a loud laugh is quite as objectionable as a loud voice. A burst of noisy laughter stamps a person as ill-bred.

The girl who laughs loudly in the street makes herself conspicuous, and no modest, well-bred girl ever cares to be conspicuous.

You may not be able to cultivate a pretty or artistic laugh, but you certainly can cultivate a low one. Try and remember this and see if you cannot help to make the girls of America famous for pretty voices and laughter as well as for pretty faces.

New Extravagancies in Feminine Dress

PEAU DE VELOURS, the velvety calfskin employed for those rich little morning waistcoats, is being largely used also for the colored shoes and slippers without which a house or calling gown is no longer considered complete.

The price of some specimens of this colored footwear would furnish the average woman with a boot supply for years. To begin with, the foot covering must exactly match in shade the gown it accompanies, so that the skin must be dyed to match the fashionable new tones or tints.

Then the slippers must be adorned with handsome buckles, and here is where the cost may be run up to three figures.

Women of aesthetic taste and well-lined purses are having beautiful and original clasps designed for the purpose, or paying fancy prices for quaint and suitable antiques.

A pair of slippers that her friends term "fascinating" is worn by one woman with a house gown of elephant gray mousseline de soie. These are in elephant gray peau de velours with high black lacquered heels, and are beautified with unique buckles of moss agate banded with a rim of carved gold. Set in the centre of the agate is a tiny mosaic of violet and black.

As though milliners had not put the woman who is no longer young sufficiently at a disadvantage by decreeing modes in hats that are becoming only to the ingenue, now the jewelers must prescribe a new method of wearing the pearl necklace that, alas! none but the young may venture.

It is a coquettish mode of arrangement that is properly suited only to the unlined face. Needless many women who have long passed their youthful charms will be tempted to essay it.

A long rope of pearls is necessary, and the evening gown which accompanies it should be of empire type. The necklace is caught up to the coiffure at either side of the head with the circular clasps, pearl set and with tasseled pendants of the pearls.

Beautiful clasps in interesting antique patterns come specially for this purpose. Of the two loops of the pearl rope which hang down in front from the clasps one should reach to the base of the neck, beneath the chin, the other should fall to the waist.

These sway and quiver in lines of delightful grace with each movement of the wearer's head. No jeweled dog collar is worn with the necklace when it is arranged in this way.

Handy Things for Housewives to Know

A DRESSMAKING HINT

If you are what is called an "out" size, and the paper patterns can be bought only at a dressmaker's establishment, you also do not fit you, rip an old well-fitting dress bodice apart, iron out the pieces so that they will lie flat, and cut a bodice pattern in paper from this. By allowing extra width where fullness will be needed, you can cut blouses from the same pattern.

TO PERFUME CLOTHES

A LITTLE arrowroot enclosed in a muslin bag and shaken in the water in which handkerchiefs are boiled will give them a faint and agreeable scent when ironed. If this is put in the water in which they are rinsed they will assume the right degree of stiffness without being harsh as if actually starched.

TO CLEAN BOARDS

SCRUB the way of the grain of the wood, use plenty of warm water, and dry one small piece at a time. Do not put more water on the boards than is necessary to make them clean, or they will take very long to dry if made too wet. When the boards have been well scrubbed they must be rubbed with a clean cloth wrung out of clean, warm water, then with a dry cloth the way of the grain. If the boards are not well rubbed and dried they will not be a good color, even after a good scrubbing. After cleaning a room open windows and doors, and do not lay carpets down until boards are quite dry. Always scrub bedrooms in the morning, if possible, as they should be perfectly dry before using slept in, or serious illness may result.

A USEFUL HINT

WHEN washing painted walls or wood put about two cents' worth of painters' size (previously dissolved in hot water) in a pail of water, and apply with a soft cloth. The dirt will be very quickly removed and the paint improved in appearance, the freshness of the paint before commencing at the top. This prevents the water leaving dirty marks on the lower part.

WHITE COLLARS, CUFFS

NEVER put these in the copper with other clothes. Boil them in a pan by themselves after they have been washed put them in a pan of clean water, rinse them with cold water. Then set the jar in the oven, cover with an old plate, and let it simmer for two or three hours. Then take them out and rinse them and dry them and get them up in the usual way.

"THE HERITAGE OF HATE"

Copyright, 1907, by American Journal-Examiner.

"I KNOW, I know," murmured Mr. Jolly sympathetically. He had taken out his handkerchief and was blowing his nose. The sudden softness in her brilliant eyes, the sudden quiver in her rich, deep voice, had filled him with a pity such as he could have found no words to utter. She hurried on, scarcely heeding his feeble interpolation.

"On Tuesday night I found time to go down there. I went, as I usually go, up through the park, among the trees that skirt the drive. It is a dreadful way for me; it is haunted still by the horrors of that terrible night when my whole life was wrecked; but I force myself to pass along it for the sake of the blessed hope that leads me and the moments of joy that may await me at the end.

"It is usually the hilliest room window that I look at it. It is the safest for me to approach, and the children seem to be often in that room in the evening after dinner. And on Tuesday night I looked in there, and I saw Pauline and her stepmother——

She broke off, drawing in her breath quickly as though to force back some emotion that was surging up too wildly in her breast.

"Mrs. Heath was speaking to Pauline. She went on quickly, but not unkindly, angrily, as I could see from the movement of her eyes. And then suddenly she lifted her hand, and struck Pauline sharply in the face. I—I cannot describe what I saw, I felt—Heaven help me!—as if I were living on at a murder. I wrestled all my strength to keep myself from crying out. Then I was across the street and at the window, and I heard what words accompanied the blows. They were not words spoken cruelly, contemptuously——"

"Like Jim's wife!" Pauline had said. I never tell them; but when those bitter, loathing words were roused at her, she lashed into a storm of sobs.

"And I—I, the mother, who would die to shield her from such cruelty—had to crouch outside in misery and hear her taunted with my unjust ignominy—my wretched, blighted life, and never dare to lift a finger to defend her or utter a word that should advance the wounds she was torturing her!"

Changed!

The unhappy mother paused as she spoke. Her dark, and eyes were ofttimes wild with wrath, her clear-cut, finely-formed features, with their memories of past splendid beauty, seemed, despite their weary haggardness, to gain an added grandeur from the anguish which wrung them. She sank into a chair, and, resting her elbows on the table, buried her face in her hands.

The silence pressed and the twilight deepened, and still the despondent-hearted woman remained thus in her attitude of despair, while her grief-worn face hidden by her hands.

No sob, no murmur came from her; but her shoulders shook under the gray cloak, betraying the inward tumult that racked her. The sight of her silent agony dismayed Mr. Jolly.

"It is better than I thought," she said, hurriedly. "I must have been here a long time. I am neglecting my duties. However, this visit is better for my returning. Even were I an old haunted by the fear of being recognized," she added, with a curious, small smile.

"I walk about in constant dread lest, amid the whispers of Thorp goes Sister Rachel"—whispers which, I think God, in a blessing in them—I should not. May calm the old name 'Cthulia Heath,' Lovingly with it its inseparable curse. And yet surely I am changed enough to be secure against that! It is years since any of these lines have been before—years that have been for me years of a very ordeal in the face and wrecking body as well as sear the heart.

"Even the man who was my husband would know me now. I believe there is only one person whose recognition I need really fear, and that is Gilbert Winn. He has keen eyes, and it may be that a guilty consciousness makes them doubly keen. Horrocks, the lawyer, would know me if he met me face to face. But he is not likely to meet me."

Jolly in Doubt

She drew down her veil. Then she held out her hand. Mr. Jolly took it and kept it silently in one hand. His round, florid face was slight with some bright thought, and he had expressed a peculiar desire that for a moment and smiled, smiled with that twinkling something which Alfred Harding had made to him on two previous nights. She saw the right thus to betray, without authority, the lawyer's secret—even to Pauline Heath's mother?

An obsession of hard work in a brick field doesn't teach a man what to do in all the circumstances of life," he said about, with a humble and somewhat regretful smile. "There are some difficulties in which one can trust only to one's heart to guide one aright. I'm in one of those difficulties now. I know something which it seems to me you would be glad to know—something which, indeed, you ought in honor and yet I am not sure that I should be justified in telling you, since the secret is not mine."

He did tell her, however, after a moment's deliberation. Pliably and straightforwardly he repeated to her, almost in the young doctor's very words, Alfred Harding's avowal of love for Pauline, Sister Paul listened with a new softness and tenderness stealing into her hard, wild eyes, and a slow warmth creeping into the haggard pallor of her cheeks. He read to the end and then she approved.

"Mr. Harding is a brave and loyal and noble-hearted man," she said, in a calm, dignified voice, which nevertheless had an under thrill of intense earnestness in it. "If anything could love him it would be for her happiness."

Fire of Revolt

Then the smoldering fire of passion and revolt toward revolt came into her eyes again.

"Pauline's happiness," she cried, in a sharp, heartbroken voice. "As if anything in this world could be—could secure it—even a good man's love—could secure it after the life she has led! Tell me," she turned once more to Mr. Jolly—"you know my position, and all the secrets of my life; is there no help for me, no hope? Is there nothing I can do to help my children? Must I endure for years—perhaps until my death—this torture of knowing that they are ill-treated, that they are living in a loveless home, with every bent made bitter for them, and my unjust sentence blighting their innocence?

"The kindly old fellow shook his head. 'There is no one can help you yet. You have no authority to interfere, unless you report yourself; and if you reveal yourself you might forfeit your parole, and you would certainly be sent back from the hospital. Then you would have to suppose

MEIKLE BOY AT LAST TO HAVE TRIAL

Lynn Lad Answers to Charge of Murder of Father at Salem Monday.

CASE CALLED REMARKABLE

LYNN, May 18.—Arrangements were completed today for the trial of Edgar Meikle, the fourteen-year-old schoolboy who is under indictment charged with having shot and killed his father in their home here in November, 1905, and who for the past six months has been locked up in the Salem jail. The trial will begin Monday morning before Judges Stevens and Sanderson in the Superior Court at Salem.

The case, which has already attracted wide attention because of the boy's age, the fact that Lynn police and the medical examiner decided that his father committed suicide, and that the boy was not arrested, charged with the murder until after a year had elapsed from the time of his father's death, has gathered additional interest within the past few days.

Special Venire Called.

The dock which is used only in capital cases has been put up in the court room at Salem. A special venire of eighty men has been drawn, from which the trial jury will be selected, and District-Attorney Peters has taken the case before the grand jury for the second time.

This last move has puzzled the counsel for the defence. These lawyers said today that they thought that the district attorney had the case heard by the grand jury again in the belief that this body would return a "no bill" or would find against the boy upon a minor charge. The grand jury did not mention the case in its report.

The man women who have become interested in the boy and who have seen to it that his education has not been neglected since he was placed in jail are confident that he will be acquitted.

The story, which he will tell of the happenings of the day upon which his father was killed, the boy has already told as follows:

"I asked father came home from his work. I asked me if I had been at school that day. I answered that I had not. Then he asked me if I had dinner ready. I told him not quite, but that it would be ready when he was ready for it. He asked me if I had washed the morning dishes. I replied, rather ashamed, that I had not neglected them, but that I would attend to them right away.

Lad's Own Story of Crime.

"My father found some fault with each answer as he had a right to. He washed his face and seated himself at the table.

"I had a note from my teacher to him, but I was rather afraid to hand it to him at first, because he seemed distressed, sick, worried—worried perhaps about my answers to his questions.

"The teacher's note was not pleasant for him to read. As he sat at the table I handed it to him. He read it and scolded me again.

"I kept on with the work of preparing the meal. Father arose and entered the bedroom. He returned in a moment and stood by the stove and then he put the pistol to his face and shot himself.

Young Meikle has never varied from this story in the many times he has told it.

DR. PEABODY DECORATED BY KAISER

BERLIN, May 18.—Emperor William has conferred the crown order of the second class on Dr. Francis Greenwood Peabody, professor of Christian morals at Harvard University, who was selected by the University of Berlin as the first professor from Harvard in the international exchange of professors which began in 1905. The professor returned to the United States last year, after delivering his course of lectures.

WOMAN SAYS WILL PROSECUTE BOWLER.

Mrs. Edith Stevens Reynolds, Once Friend of Forger, Who Now Declares Love Has Turned to Hate.

EMBEZZLER OF $92,000, HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Levi C. Lincoln of Woonsocket Hears Friends Testify Against Him.

Special to the Boston American.

WOONSOCKET, May 18.—With his head bowed and his eyes averted from his life long business and social friends who were in the courtroom, Levi C. Lincoln, self-confessed forger and embezzler of $92,000 from the Woonsocket Electric Machine & Power Company, of which he was general manager and treasurer, was arraigned in the district court here today and was held to await the action of the June grand jury.

During his stay here since his arrival last night he had been locked in a cell in the court house, and there he had been visited by members of his family. He seemed to-day to be much broken in spirits.

Among the witnesses that testified against Lincoln before Judge Feeley to-day were George Batchelor, president of the Woonsocket Electric Machine and Power Company; John J. McFerran, vice-president of the same concern; George R. Smith, its secretary, and Joseph G. Ray, the treasurer.

Chief of Police Boston of Woonsocket and Richard W. Wright, a Boston account ant, also testified.

Confession Told in Court.

The confession which Lincoln made in the law office of Edward & Angell to Providence, during which he admitted that in the seventeen years he had been connected with the company he had embezzled $92,000, most of which he had lost in speculation, was related.

The charge upon which Lincoln was held to the grand jury to-day was a charge of embezzlement. The sum named was $57,000, which, it is charged, Lincoln has embezzled since January 1, 1907. The forgery charges against Lincoln did not enter into the proceedings to-day.

THREATENS TO SUE FOR FALSE ARREST NOW

Mrs. Reynolds, Once Bowler's Friend, in New York Mystery.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, May 18.—Lawyers for Mrs. Edith Stevens Reynolds, the once wealthy Boston woman, whose infatuation for George Pendleton Bowler, former Harvard and society man, cost her and her mother, more than $400,000, announced last night that she would sue Mrs. Rosa L. Barrick, proprietress of the Hotel Belmont, at No. 130 West Forty-Fifth street, for alleged false arrest of Mrs. Reynolds yesterday.

Mrs. Reynolds was arrested on a warrant sworn to by Mrs. Barrick, charging her with owing $1,004.70 for food, lodging and accommodation at the Hotel Belmont from January 4 to April 10.

After hearing the case against Mrs. Reynolds in private chambers at the Fifty-fourth street court, Magistrate Cornell honorably discharged Mrs. Reynolds, and at the same time declared that if there was any action by Mrs. Barrick, who is a negress, it could only be taken through a civil court.

"The arrest of Mrs. Reynolds was an outrage," said former Commissioner of Licenses P. L. C. Keating, attorney for Mrs. Reynolds, last night. "Mrs. Reynolds had no intention to defraud, and as a matter of fact, interviewed Mrs. Barrick just night regarding her bill. She also left baggage at the hotel worth much more than the money due."

Blames Troubles on Bowler.

Mr. Keating then declared that all the recent troubles of Mrs. Reynolds had been caused by the actions of George Pendleton Bowler, now in Boston, awaiting sentence for forgery of the name of his brother, Robert Pendleton Bowler, to more than $15,000 of notes. The greatest secrecy surrounded the arraignment of Mrs. Reynolds, who is a young woman of striking beauty.

An exciting scene occurred immediately after the discharge of Mrs. Reynolds. Mrs. Barrick, who was laboring under great excitement, approached Mrs. Reynolds, and stated that she would cheerio her. Court officers immediately intervened. Mrs. Reynolds declined to make any comment on Mrs. Barrick's action and her lawyers escorted her out of the court room, after she had run the gauntlet of several photographers.

Attorneys for Mrs. Reynolds announced last night that they would bring both criminal and civil actions against George Pendleton Bowler in Boston during the coming week.

FORAKER DEFIES PARTY BOSSES, BIG OR LITTLE

Senator Hurls New Bomb Into the Ohio Presidential Fight.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Senator Foraker threw another bomb into the Ohio political situation today by coming out in a strong statement denunciatory of Walter Brown, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, and inferentially inviting himself again into the contest for Ohio's endorsement for the presidency. He says that he will abide by the action of the next Ohio Republican convention as to whether he shall be a candidate again for any office "and if so what that office shall be."

The statement was issued forth by one issued last night in Toledo by Brown.

Foraker's statement reads in part:

"If the Republicans in Ohio are all 'overwhelmingly' or even by a fair majority, in favor of Secretary Taft, his friends need not either fear the primaries or be in a hurry about holding them.

"So far as the control of the State organization is concerned I have never made any claim to that. I have always supposed that organizations were mere party machinery and not personal property of any one, not even the chairman of the State Central Committee.

"As to the rest of Mr. Brown's statement, it is difficult to make a public answer. For rank, dictatorial and offensive bossism, if for nothing anything I can recall, it amounts to a threat that unless I straightaway declare for Mr. Taft, I shall lose the Senatorship. That may be, but if so the fact has no terrors for me.

"I said at Canton that I would not be dictated to by any kind of a boss, big or little, inside or outside the State. I repeat that announcement for just such bosses as Mr. Brown, and for just such performances as he is now giving us."

MAIN BREAKS; CAUSES FLOOD IN PROVIDENCE

Streams from Fountain Spouting 25 Feet in Air Fill Business House Cellars.

FIRE SERVICE CRIPPLED

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 18.—For two hours after the breaking of a big thirty-inch water main at the corner of Washington and Mathewson streets, in the heart of the business district, shortly after 1 o'clock this morning, a spouting fountain three streams of water twenty-five feet into the air, before the water could be shut off, flooding the streets in all directions and filling the cellars of the Hotel Dorrance, Labor Temple, News-Democrat office, telephone exchange, and many other business houses, causing great damage.

As a result of the break the fire department service is crippled, it being necessary to shut off thirteen gates in the water mains in the heart of the business section and, should a fire break out, there would be no water to fight it with, unless the gates were opened again.

The water pressure all over the city is now extremely low, millions of gallons having gone to waste from the broken main.

The telephone service was almost put out of commission, there being three feet of water in the cellar of the exchange on Union street. When the break occurred, the police reserves were called out and three workmen of the water department worked two hours before they finally succeeded in stopping the flow of water.

So strong were the streams running away from the broken pipe, on the asphalt pavements, that the sidewalks along Washington and Mathewson streets were undermined and great openings torn, through which the water streamed into the cellars. The damage will mount into the thousands.

BAPTIZE SPAIN'S HEIR.

MADRID, May 18.—Three cardinals, eleven archbishops and twenty-one bishops, with representatives of all the courts of Europe, were present at the christening of the heir to the Spanish throne today.

WAR DANCES BY TECH STUDENTS BLOCK STREET

Crackle of Huge Bonfire, Cheers, Yells and Singing Resound in Copley Square.

Tech students danced war dances around roaring bonfires on Boylston street last night, when the old custom of burning their uniforms after prize drills was held at the South Armory and was one of the finest on record.

Crowds blocked the street and cars were held up as the blue-coated cadets and spectators sang, cheered, yelled and danced on the steps of Rogers Building and on the pavement.

Tar Barrels Used.

Tar barrels, used in repairing the street, were rolled upon to add to the splendor of the blaze, and the flames leaped skyward, being further helped by loose boards and broken barrels.

When there was no more material for the blaze the students flocked into the street and caused no little trouble to passing cars by pulling off the trolleys. The delay of one or two cars just as crowds from the theatres were traveling homeward caused the cars to be held up for many blocks.

The students again started a war dance in the middle of the street, further tieing up the cars.

March Down Street.

Tiring of this sort of fun about 200 formed in a closely packed mass and marched down Boylston street to Washington, up Washington, crossing in squads through the cross streets to Tremont. The last band broke up on Columbus avenue.

The drill which preceded this demonstration was under Major W. F. Dalke.

Company A under Captain A. D. Reakles, won the company prize drill.

In the individual drill the first prize was won by Private T. W. Saul and second prize went to Second Sergeant E. A. Coes.

Money Saved Through Anty Drudge.

Mrs. Youngwife (at telephone)—"Hello Harry, you don't need to order those new tablecloths and napkins at Blashman's after all. Anty Drudge came in this morning and showed me how Fels-Naptha soap would take the stains out of the old ones. They're as clean and white as new now."

Anty Drudge—"You just keep on using Fels-Naptha, Deary, and it'll save you buying lots of things—everything you wash will wear so much longer. It'll save your health and beauty, too."

Stains are the great trial of a woman who does the family wash in the old way. Coffee stains, fruit stains, egg stains, occasionally blood stains, and many others which defy all ordinary soaps and hard rubbing as well. In despair, the housewife boils the clothes until their fibre is softened and weakened, but even then the shadows of the stains remain.

Such stains are easy for Fels-Naptha soap. They are but minute particles of colored matter clinging to threads of the cloth. The Fels-Naptha dissolves them into tiny atoms which can't cling to anything. A rinsing separates them from the clothes entirely. The stain is gone, leaving the clothes clean, white and pure. And mind you, all this is done in cold or lukewarm water, without boiling or hard rubbing. Fels-Naptha does not in the slightest degree harm the fibre of the cloth as boiling does. No other soap, no matter what it is called, will take out stains without boiling. Be sure to get the genuine Fels-Naptha. It comes in the red and green wrapper.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, May 18—Boston and Chicago meet here for the first time this season this afternoon. It will be a battle of the 1906 world's champions and the tailenders of the American League, and it looks as though the locals have the better chance to win the majority of four games, but as they say in the classics, "You never can tell."

The Pilgrims play four games here. There will be a battle to-day, another to-morrow and one Monday and another on Tuesday.

The Bostons came here directly from Cleveland, where they lost three straight to Larry Lajoie's singers.

The White Sox are pretty gloomy to-day because of the bad beating given them yesterday by the Senators, and they are going to try and wreak revenge on the Pilgrims.

The Bostons expect to have Congalton, the new outfielder bought from the Naps, join them in this city to-morrow of the next day.

The Pilgrims have made arrangements to play off their postponed game with Cleveland at Cleveland, May 27, the Bostons stopping off in Nagland on their way East from St. Louis. The Indians had been booked to play in Akron on that day but have cancelled the game.

Jesse Tannehill, who has always proved a hard nut for the locals to crack, will probably do the pitching for the Bostons this afternoon, while Fred White is likely to do the twirling for the home team.

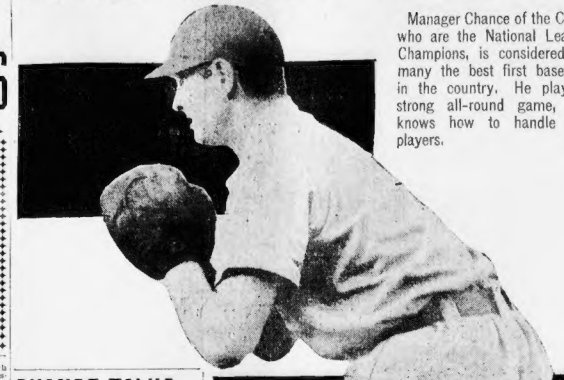
MANAGER CHANCE OF CHICAGO CUBS

Manager Chance of the Cubs, who are the National League Champions, is considered by many the best first baseman in the country. He plays a strong all-round game, and knows how to handle ball players.



CHANCE TALKS ON FINANCIAL POLICY OF CUBS

"Baseball is like any other business in one respect—you have to spend money to make money," said Manager Frank L. Chance of the champion Chicago Cubs, to-day. "Why is our club the best drawing card in the National League? Because President Murphy does not stop at the price if he wants a player. If I tell him I want a player he gets the man for me, no matter what the financial cost may be. The public knows this and appreciates the fact.

"You cannot pursue a hair-splitting policy in baseball and be successful. If we needed a man, will strengthen the team, we do not allow a few dollars to stand in the way of getting him. During the past Winter I told Mr. Murphy of my desire to get a certain star player and he actually astonished me by offering approximately $15,000 for the man's services. I guess his offer was really so large that it actually frightened the other club manager, and they were afraid to accept it. Such salary list is so large that it would frighten some clubs from going on the theory that the public will support a winner better than Sinbad the Sailor. Under the present management to make the Cubs champions, and whenever we see a chance to add a little more pulling strength, we intend to take advantage of it. A club is never strong that cannot be made stronger, and we are always looking for the opportunity to add more playing strength."

CRIMSON NINE PLAY TIGERS AT SOLDIERS' FIELD

BATTING ORDER.

HARVARD.	PRINCETON.
Leonard, 3b.	Newcomb, c.f.
Briggs, 1b.	Dillon, 2b.
McCall, 2b.	Harlen, l.f.
Nexter or Dana, l.f.	Vaughn, s.s.
Simons, s.s.	Cooney, c.
Harvey, c.f.	Sides, 3b.
Dana or Pounds, r.f.	McLean, 1b.
Currier, c.	Wister, r.f.
Hartford, p.	Heyburn, p.

Harvard's first big game of the season takes place at Soldiers' Field this afternoon, when the first of the series with Princeton will be played.

It is expected the Crimson nine will make a better showing than last season, when both games were lost to the Tigers. So far this season the Cambridge players have put up a finished article of ball, Captain Hartford they have a star twirler, and a man worthy to complete against Heyburn, who will deliver the pellets for the visitors.

Harvard may be greatly handicapped, as Captain Dexter and Third Baseman Leonard are both suffering from tonsilitis, and not expected to play. If proven the case, the Crimson's chances of victory will be greatly lessened.

If these men don't play Strickett will be played at third and Dana in left outfield. Dana, now playing right field, would be moved over to Dexter's place in left and Pounds would go to right.

CONGALTON OF INDIANS SOLD TO PILGRIMS

CLEVELAND, May 18.—William Congalton, outfielder of the Cleveland Club, was sold outright last night to the Boston Americans. He will, it is understood, be used in right field in the place of Grimshaw. "Bunk," as he is called, will join the Pilgrims in Chicago next week, probably Monday. He batted 320 last season, but was kept on the bench most of the season because Birmingham, Flick and Hinchman are faster fielders and speedier base runners.

The sale of Congalton was not completed until last night, when Clark Griffith accepted Cleveland's offer of Pitcher Moore for Pitcher Clarkson and Outfielder Delehanty. The latter refused to join the Yankees this season because they would not pay him his price, but it is thought he will now give up studying medicine at Baldwin University at Berea, near here, and accept Cleveland's terms.

INSTITUTES VS. EAGLES.

The Institutes of the West End cross bats with the Eagles of Charlestown on the Common to-day, and a very interesting game is expected.

GREAT LIST OF SPEEDY PACERS WILL BE ELIGIBLE FOR FREE-FOR-ALLS

By Edward E. Cogswell.

Never in the history of the light harness horse turf are such an array of brilliant and phenomenally fast pacers eligible to a free-for-all in the Grand Circuit meetings as is the instance this coming season. A careful research of the records show that no less than thirteen pacers can safely be counted in this class, and they will make the tracks banging up the big money in purses.

This list of composed of Audubon Boy, 1:59½; Bolivar, 2:00¾; Lestatic, 2:01¾; Lounda, 2:02; Gratt, 2:02¾; John M., 2:02¾; Angus Pointer, 2:02¾; Hal Pointer, 2:02¾; Baron Grattan, 2:03; Nathan Straus, 2:03¾, and My Maggie, 2:03¾; Gallagher, 2:03½; Argot Boy, Star, 2:03¾.

It is too bad that the Broncho, 2:00¾, cannot be added to this list, but he retired from her Western training camp is to the Bluegrass, and will be developed next Winter with plans for his retirement this year. Consequently he is getting a treatment of firing and blistering.

With one single exception of Gallagher, who was in England, all took the world's record, and it was the remarkable rate of speed required in order to lead the summaries that drove so many to take records from 2:03¾ down, that brought about the present situation to pacedom.

Cycles of Speed.

Breeders and experienced turfmen always have claimed that the product of extraordinary speed in horses is due to in cycles, and in support of their theory point to the fact that after almost a deluge of phenomenal colt trotters, as well as aged trotters and pacers, for a season or two there is a general falling off in the extreme list several years roll around when the same condition prevails again.

The last cycle of speed some ago was to be found Star Pointer, Joe Patchen, Joan, Sunny and Robert Direct, though the latter dropped by the wayside soon after the previously named stars appeared on their tracks.

Any time these four pacers started over a good track it could be counted that the world's record would be cut, and in better. It was the height of the cycle period of remarkable speed. The old mare horse Joe Patchen stood the racket the best of the four, and was still on the turf when Anaconda, Dan R., and Coney took up the gauntlet in the fast pacing events through the country.

Then came such a falling off in the quality of the speedsters that when Joe Patchen was out racing he only secured a record of 2:04¼. In competition, while Audubon Boy's race record is only a full second faster.

In the seasons of 1903-4-5 it was about the usual thing to see the fastest pacing horses in the Grand Circuit won in the around 2:04 to 2:05, though John M. did jump a heat in at Memphis in 2:02¾, but it was a radical exception to the rule. The similar campaign that Nathan Straus made down the Grand Circuit in 1905, and had only to pace his one best heat in 2:03¾ illustrates the fact.

Many Fast Ones Eligible.

With the available thirteen pacers in sight it is conceded that all of the tracks in the big time will bang up money for a free-for-all or two-minute class this year, but it was a radical exception to the rule. The similar campaign that Nathan Straus made down the Grand Circuit in 1905, and had only to pace his one best heat in 2:03¾ illustrates the fact.

HILLIARD WON'T DRIVE A THOMAS IN VANDERBILT

By J. C. Kerrison.

W. S. Hilliard will not drive a Thomas racer in the forthcoming Vanderbilt, unless he should change his mind, and that would necessitate the making of a second proposition on the part of Mr. Thomas. Hilliard said yesterday that he had given up all idea of driving a Thomas in the Vanderbilt because he was unable to come to a satisfactory agreement with the designer and builder of the car. He rather implied, but by no means admitted, that it is possible that he will drive a car in the big Vanderbilt, but just what the car will be is somewhat a question. Two other concerns are making overtures to him with the idea of securing him as a member of their respective teams.

The E. T. Kimball company, agents of the Corbin car, took rather a novel way of securing early deliveries, but the first part of this week. Instead of having the cars shipped to them by rail from New Britain they made contracts whereby they should come over the road on Tuesday. The cars left the factory Tuesday morning, there being besides the chauffeurs, Sales Manager E. H. Brandt, Secretary R. B. Bassett, E. T. Kimball of Boston and John Wilson, of the sales and publicity department. An easy run was made to Springfield where dinner was enjoyed and where the party was joined by W. T. Heifer of the Springfield Metal Body Company, Harry L. Fox of the Fox Tire Company and J. W. Norcross. At Norwich Crown Agent was joined by George Phelps and the run made to Boston in the evening. It was a pleasant although long day's run, but it proved conclusively that the method of making deliveries is decidedly speedier than by sending the cars by freight or express.

* * *

Much speculation has been indulged in by local motorists and manufacturers regarding the attitude of the Pope Motor Car Company toward the forthcoming Vanderbilt race. When questioned they evasively express the friendly feeling for the very important event, but when asked if they will enter a Pope-Toledo make no reply.

Manager Lewis of the automobile department of H. P. Nichols & Company has been advised by the Frayer-Miller representatives at Los Angeles that the Frayer-Miller product won the 100-mile race at the recent races at San Diego. The distance was 10 miles and was covered in 8 hours. Miller 24 horsepower runabout in 12.2-5 minutes, beating all other competitors. This same machine also received a perfect score and a cup in an endurance run held at Los Angeles.

Harvard Track Team Expects Victory To-day

Special to the Boston American.

NEW HAVEN, May 18.—Harvard and Yale will meet in their annual track meet here this afternoon, and the Crimson team is expected to win handily.

The Cambridge, Mass., athletes are confident that the score will be by their favor by about fifty seven to forty-seven, although they contemplate a hard struggle from the Blue.

The Crimson team is rather handicapped because four of their men have severe colds, and Guntavia has tonsilitis and may not be able to take part in the 440-yard run.

The Blue has been up against it this season through accidents and illness. Many of the men are newcomers and not expected to be able to make a favorable showing against their Harvard rivals, who have generally had plenty of experience on the field.

The only hope that Old Eli has of winning rests in the fact that the met takes place on her own grounds, which is saying a good deal sometimes.

Notes of the Harness Horses

The much-touted unmarked trotting mare Sonoma Girl, trial 2:07, that is entered in $105,000 worth of stakes next season, is a daughter of Sonoma Girl, by Will Durfee, who raced Charley Mc (2:07¾) and Dr. Book (2:10).

* * *

One of the happiest men in Boston is A. G. Mayer, for many years racing secretary to Jim Rowe and it is thought the trotting mare Easter Lily (2:17½), which Rowe trained a few days in advance of Bingen, at the Charlestown Farms, Guilford, Me. She is entered in the futurities and has been named Margaret McVey. Mr. McVey has a yearling filly by H. M. Whitney, out of Easter Lily, named Virginia Trott, which he will bring to Boston next Fall for preparation in the futurity stakes of 1908. Easter Lily has every right to produce youngsters with speed to burn.

* * *

Great feats are promised from Will Mackenzie, the mate of Phallo (2:04½), by Allerton (2:06¾), that last year showed a mile in 2:07¾, and has no record.

* * *

Billy O'Neil is another to be found at the Lexington course with a number in training, among which are Bob Watago, 2:21¼, who is out of Mrs. Jack, the trotting mare that A. G. Gaston drove to the front in many of his races. Watago was for the past couple of years, and the Ringer, now in the stable of Martin & Wiley, Fayetteville, N. C.

* * *

J. Henry Richardson, owner of the Thornsby Farm, Amherst, is greatly pleased at the case of mares his Ringen stallion Simmance is receiving. Carrie T. 2:20¾; Princess Magnetic, 2:08¾, a full sister of Leonida, 2:02; Easter Lily, 2:17½; Rosebush, with a nine-weeks-old colt to Ambrino Boy, 1:59¾; by her side, and four mares from Walnut Hall are booked to Simmance.

* * *

Henry Fernandez has had from his West Roxbury farm a number of trotters and pacers to Trainer Jimmy O'Donnell at Readville.

J. R. Stuart, Jr., of the Dorchesters has sold the famous trotting champion mother of Franklin Field Speedway, Rules K., 2:30¾, to Henry Wood, the Wellesley speedway and matinee enthusiast.

PENN'S ENTRIES WERE SENT ON TIME

Special to the Boston American.

PHILADELPHIA, May 18.—Manager Martin of the University of Pennsylvania track team announced to-day that the Pennsylvania entries for the intercollegiate championships at Cambridge on June 1 had been sent last Saturday and therefore observed the rule stipulating that all entries close three weeks before the championship meeting. The Harvard management which has charge of the meet sent an urgent telegram to the Pennsylvania management calling its attention to the fact that Pennsylvania's entries had not been received, and desired to know if this was the reason for the delay in sending them.

Manager Martin immediately replied that the Quaker entries were mailed on Saturday night, and stated that his understanding of the rule was that the three weeks' proviso merely meant that the entries should be mailed not less than three weeks prior to the championships, the same as in all other special events.

Manager Martin further stated that there would be no possibility of the Pennsylvania entries being rejected.

HARVARD FRESHMEN WIN.

In one of the closest races ever rowed on the Charles River, the Harvard freshman crew yesterday won the Interclass championship, covering the course in the good time of 9 minutes 22 seconds. The sophomores were only about a half length behind the freshmen, the juniors were about the same length behind the sophomores and the seniors about half a length behind the juniors.

FAST LOT OF PLAYERS ON MATTAPAN BALL TEAM

The Mattapan Baseball Club bids fair to be one of the best teams about Boston this season, and is being recognized by all the leading teams. Manager Johnson has a fast bunch together and the team will be watched by all fans.

For pitchers, there are Terry, formerly of the Boylstons; Barrows, last year's mainstay on the Norfolks; Curtin, of East Roxbury High, and McPherson, formerly with the Crawfords. The latter is a Dorchester and English High. In the catching department are Pino, formerly of the Boylstons; Reynolds, of last year's Glendales; and Wolfe, a former Boylston star.

On first base will be Johnson, for the past two years on the Boylston; second will be looked after by "Kid" Hammarle of last year's Glendales, with Weatherbee, formerly of Milton High, on third, and Terry, a local player of some note, at short stop.

In the outfield will be Hirshon, the old Roxbury High player; Bright, of the old Homefields; Hallis of Holbrook, and Peterson, who has had some experience on many of the local teams. As a batting team, it is a good one, as Barrows, McPherson, Wolfe, Johnson, Weatherbee, Troy and Hirshon are all heavy batters, while the latter, McPherson, Barrows and Johnson bring good home runners. Terry is one of the best pitchers about Boston and, with Johnson, will keep opponents confidently on the lookout for the "squeeze-play," which they successfully worked fifteen times last year with only one games. The schedule of the team is:

May 25, Glendales at Franklin Park; May 30, Open; two games; June 1, Hosick at Lowell, June 8, Dorchesters at Milton; June 15, North Dorchester at North Boston; June 17, Open; two games; June 22, Glendale (2) at Franklin Park; June 29, Open; two games; July 4, Middlesex at Milton (morning); Open for afternoon; July 6, Norfolks at Franklin Field; July 13, Groveland A. A. at Mattapan; July 20, Institutes at Roxbury; July 27, Somerville A. A. at Somerville; August 3, St. Margarets at Brookline; August 10, Glendales at Milton; August 17, North Dorchester at Milton; August 24, open; August 31, Glendale A. C. at Milton; September 2, Boylston at Roxbury (morning); Open for afternoon; September 7, Norfolks at Milton; September 14, Groveland A. A. at Milton.

GRIDIRON CHAMPS GIVE BIG RECEPTION

The reception, dinner and dance of the Rovers' Association Football Club, in the rooms of Williams and Washington streets, Jamaica Plain, last night, was a great success, and included prominent men in all of the neighboring districts. President Thomas Williams was toastmaster. Music was furnished by an orchestra consisting of Messrs. Cahill, Donovan and Hartnett. Among those who contributed to the entertainment were Mabel Smith, Mossie Smith, Darcy, Mack and Murray, the McCarthy Sisters and Miss Charlotte Wood.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

Both teams hit at about the same gait, but the Cubs bunched theirs.

* * *

Ritchey saved a shutout by his double scoring forward.

* * *

It was the best breakway yet for the Doves but after the Spuds got the lead it was all off.

* * *

That was a great catch of Beaumont's in the first, off Steinfeldt. He stretched out his glove hand and the ball stuck. It saved two runs.

* * *

Pat Moran turned completely around and tried to get Howard scoring second. The throw was of course out of true and Howard went to third scoring on Ritchey's double.

* * *

The Germans made friends with Gus Dorner at the outset, and Gus departed after two innings of entertaining.

* * *

Too bad Dave Brain made a high throw after a brilliant stop off Evers, and it counted a run.

* * *

President Charley Murphy of the Cubs and ex-Director Bill Conant discussed the game in President Dovey's box.

* * *

Captain Chance decided Taylor was marked and yanked him out after Bridwell and Needham had got safe hits.

* * *

Chick Fraser went on the block and his first effort was to make "Little Cy" swing thirties.

* * *

Howard, Bates and Ritchey used the same bat in the sixth, Howard's liner was caught and Bates and Ritchey got safe hits.

* * *

Evers was greeted whistling on a slow hit by Howard. He skipped one hand on the ball and passed to Chance without stopping his speed.

A Supreme Court Decision

It Sounds Well. But Is It Final?

In Washington, on the 13th of May, the Supreme Court of the United States decided, in tones most formal, that the last say in all important matters in the United States lies with that court. According to the Supreme Court, there is no power anywhere in the country to limit that court's authority, or to reverse or set bounds to a judgment given by the people's judges.

We quote from the decision:

"Speaking generally, it may be observed that the judicial power of a nation extends to all controversies justiciable in their nature, the parties to which or the property involved in which may be reached by judicial process, and when the judicial power of the United States was vested in the Supreme and other courts all the judicial power which the nation was capable of exercising was vested in these tribunals, and unless there be some limitations expressed in the Constitution it must be held to embrace all controversies of a justiciable nature arising within the territorial limits of the nation, no matter who may be the parties thereto."

That is an excellent opinion from the point of view of the Supreme Court judges, naturally jealous of their power.

We beg to give, with perhaps less solemnity, but with more real authority, a decision on the part of eighty millions of people, WHO ARE ALSO JEALOUS OF THEIR POWER.

The statement that unless the Constitution gives the people the power to question a judicial decision, THAT DECISION CANNOT BE QUESTIONED ANYWHERE, NO MATTER WHO THE PARTIES THERETO MAY BE, IS SIMPLE FOLLY.

The people of the United States in 1776 GAVE JOBS, SALARIES AND POWER to certain judges.

And the people of the United States to-day, in 1907, GIVE JOBS AND SALARIES TO CERTAIN JUDGES.

But they do not give the United States to those judges, and they don't give the territory or the property of the United States to those judges, and the people reserve the right to change at any time any decision, or change any Constitution, or put any judge off the bench, or overrule any decision, if they see fit.

All the power in the United States is IN THE PEOPLE. The people own the COUNTRY. They own the JUDGES, the PRESIDENT, they control every official, every inch of ground, every dollar. All decisions of every court, from the Supreme Court of the United States down to the little justice in a village, are subject to the people's approvement and indorsement. If the people don't like a decision, they can overturn it. It is their right, and the Constitution provides for it. If the people don't like a Judge, they can tell him so, and end his period of service very promptly by the proper legal action.

The Judges of the Supreme Court in Washington ought to know, and we think they do know, that the court of last resort in the United States is the ballot box.

Such decisions as that just quoted are apt to irritate or worry certain citizens who take seriously the idea of republican government, and who object just as much to dictation by a gentleman in a black silk gown sitting on the Supreme bench as they would to a man in cocked hat sitting on a warhorse. Those men need not worry. The people rule and own the courts. They voted and fought in 1776 to put all power in the hands of the PEOPLE. They didn't fight to transfer absolute power from an English king to an American judge.

Where the Blame for the Strike Belongs

The Rev. Roland D. Sawyer, well-known pastor of Ward Hill Congregational Church of Haverhill, has sent the following open letter to the R. S. Brine Company and the Master Teamsters of Boston:

GENTLEMEN—I am in receipt of an envelope of stuff which I suppose you are sending about to the ministers of the State, in the hope of enlisting their aid in the unjust war you are waging on the Teamsters' Union and the Boston public. The envelope contains newspaper reprints on "The Failure of Arbitration in New Zealand," "Labor Violence in New York," desultory letters in the Record and Herald of Boston.

It appears to me, sirs, that you are pretty hard pushed when you have to resort to these methods, and when you have to drag in the affairs of New York and New Zealand.

You do also quote from sermons by Rev. M. R. Deming of Boston and an Episcopal rector in Connecticut. If you can find any consolation in their utterances you are welcome to it. Ministers who lend themselves to promoting your propaganda deny the teachings of Jesus Christ and disgrace their calling.

There is an implied reference to the union as being the cause of rioting in the streets and the like. Let me say to you that informed public sentiment will hold you responsible for all the disgraceful scenes that may be enacted in the Boston streets.

YOU who have brought thugs from outside cities to endanger the lives—yes, to slay the innocent citizens of Boston—upon YOU must rest the odium of any rioting that shall take place.

You demand that you shall be left free to transact your business as you please. A thousand times, NO! The men who work for you have the highest moral right to fair and proper treatment and wages, and if they have that right they have a right to enforce it by striking. The city of Boston, through whose streets you do business, has a right that you do your business in a decent manner, and if it has that right it has a right to enforce it by compelling you to submit to arbitration.

And, sirs, if you are not willing to recognize these rights, you should step down and out, and give place to some other persons who will transact their business in a manner appropriate to a civilized community in the twentieth century. I am, yours truly,

ROLAND D. SAWYER,
Pastor Ward Hill Church, Haverhill.

$50 REWARD FOR THIS AUTO DRIVER

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I can add mine to the list of auto collisions where the culprit runs away—perhaps you will give it space in your paper. I would like to have the reward feature brought before the public in the hope of finding, if possible, the miscreant who did the job.

While riding a week ago Sunday (May 5), on Blue Hill avenue, Mattapan, in the vicinity of Woolson street, a Stanley car, driven at high rate of speed and coming behind me caught my rear wheel and completely overturned my auto, pinning my companion and myself underneath. Several bystanders lifted us from the wreck. I with a crushed ankle and some bad bruises, and my friend wrenched and strained most painfully. I am able to get around now on crutches, and am endeavoring to locate the parties who did the job. They made off with all speed after the collision. I will give $50 to anyone who will furnish me with proofs as to the identity of the men in the car or its number.

THEY DINE IN STYLE; BUT WHEN WILL THEY DINE AGAIN?

Pure Fiction

By James J. Montague

THERE once was a courteous Subway guard,
With a Chesterfieldian air,
Who never said, "G-r-r-s-f-t!"
when he meant "Watch the step!"
Or bellowed, "Step lively, there!"
Who never beheaded the passengers,
With a horridly hideous grin,
By slamming the door when a couple of score
Of people were hurrying in!

There shone from the eye of this gentle-souled guy
A soft and benevolent beam.
His voice was as sooth as the accents of truth,
I saw him one time—in a dream.

THERE once was a kindly old financier,
Whose care through each busy day
Was to lighten the work of some sedulous clerk
Or to treble a laborer's pay;
Who never would chisel his fellowman out
Of the fractional part of a cent;
The wealth he'd amassed was all squandered at last,
But he died full of tranquil content.

He looked on the law with a reverent awe;
His soul was as clear as a brook.
It was cleaner, forsooth, than the neatest hound's tooth.
I met him one day—in a book.

A WAITER there was in a Boston hotel,
Who would view with a curl of his lip,
With a haughty disdain, slightly tinctured with pain,
Everything in the form of a tip.
If a customer blundered by passing a hundred
To him, he would wearily sigh,
And whisper, "Dear, dear! Won't you pay the cashier?
He handles the money, not I!"

If he thought that you dreamt with base leers to tempt
His unearthly heart he'd turn pale
And tremble with fright. I met him one night—
In a fanciful fairy tale.

She Makes a Plea for Cremation as a Most Important Factor in the World's Progress

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

ALL my life I have believed incineration of the dead was the only decent, kind, sanitary, sensible method of disposing of the cast-off shell of humanity.

If I had not believed it before, months of travel in the older countries and observation of the results of various other methods of burial would have converted me to cremation.

The mummies exhibited in various European museums are horrible proofs of the futility of all effort to preserve the bodies of the dead.

Unsightly, half-decayed corpses, bound about with innumerable wrappings and supposed to be conserved for all time, they have been torn from their resting places by the curious and irreverent and placed on exhibition for the multitudes to stare at and jest over.

Yet what expense, care, solicitude and work was expended upon the preparation of the bodies for the tomb.

How absolutely their mourning relatives believed the dear dead were laid away in complete preservation and eternal seclusion.

Fully 2,000 B. C. the royal tombs of Egypt had to be guarded by troops of Theban police to prevent their being robbed. After a time the vigilance slackened and it was discovered that vandals were exhuming the dead and trying to open the stone caskets where precious jewels were buried with the bodies.

Persistent Vandalism

THEN the mummy cases were removed to other places and re-buried, and now, after more than three thousand years, they have been found by the modern vandals, called "archaeologists," and put on exhibition.

So at Cairo in the great museum we see the bodies of Rameses I. and II. and a whole family of royal Pharaohs, kings, queens, princes and princesses, with all their "sacred eyes," scarab necklaces and household gods beside them.

It is, of course, interesting to us. But is it fair to the dead? There is no such thing as peace for dead bodies.

Friends who were travelling in Egypt came upon a mummy in the roadway.

How it came there is unknown, but at all events it had been taken from its grave, and by careless and indifferent hands conveyed to a considerable distance before it was abandoned for some unknown cause.

Surely had the body been mercifully reduced to clean ashes, and the ashes scattered to the winds or buried decently, the fate of the poor human shell would have been more enviable.

Again in the catacombs of Paris are four million skeletons which have been excavated from all cemeteries where the enlargement of the city made such work necessary.

They have been put into these old underground passages and form horrible walls for miles beneath the pulsing city—walls of skulls, arms, legs, fingers and feet bones, packed in helter-skelter.

To see them is to realize anew the value and decency and common sense of cremation, which would render such a fate impossible.

Grim Decorations

IN Rome the crypt of the Capuchin monastery contains thousands of human bones, arranged in the form of wreaths, crosses and festoons along the walls. Between these decorations grin skulls of men who have been dead hundreds of years.

In Palermo, Sicily, there is a crypt where thousands of monks, cardinals, bishops and other dignitaries stand in fraternal rows, dressed in their robes and holding Bibles, prayer books, crosses and rosaries in their skeleton hands. Every skull wears a different expression, each more horrible than the other.

Further on stand rows of skeletons who were once the poor of the town; and still further the crypt of the women, and again another devoted to the nobility. This terrible custom of standing the dead erect in these crypts was fortunately forbidden forty years ago.

No more disgusting and repellant sight can be imagined, nor a more pernicious process of the disposal of the human carcass.

At Taormina, Sicily, along the mountain sides, are rock tombs, where the Saracens buried their dead.

One would suppose such tombs safe for all time as a resting place for men.

But, nevertheless, they have been opened and rifled of the bodies and whatever treasures may have been buried with them hundreds of years ago.

Nothing remains now but the empty receptacles cut in the rocks.

In Rome I saw an ancient cemetery under process of excavation.

It had existed 1,600 B. C.

Romulus founded Rome three centuries and more later. This old graveyard belonged to a people and an era unknown to history.

Yet here were human bones being taken from their resting place, where they had reposed almost three thousand years, and exhibited to the gaze of the curious!

Do you like the thought of the possibility of having your bones or those of your dead ones subjected to any such treatment in ages to come?

Then give your sanction and your influence to cremation.

It is an important factor in the world's progress to-day.
